Increase In Population Is Bringing Farming Back to Normality

Madison, Wis., Nov. 6. (United Press) Nov. 6.—Agriculture is returning to normality through the steady increase in population and stabilizing of conditions in general, according to reports recently completed by the Institute for Research in Land Economics here, based upon statistics of agricultural production in the United States.

Agricultural production in this country has not decreased in the last decade despite the decline in the number of acres in agricultural sections of the United States, the study of land utilization shows. Only about one-half of the land is in farms and the total farm area increased only approximately 9 per cent. from 1910 to 1920, while the population increased 18 per cent. during the same period.

The increase in farm area was largely in the semi-arid States, where acres are plentiful but the productivity per acre is small. There were fewer acres in farms in 1920 than in 1910 in many of the States in the corn belt and in practically all the States east of the Mississippi. This decrease is of particular significance, the report states, because it took place in the truly agricultural States of the union.

Growth of Cities

Part of the decrease is accounted for by errors in enumeration and in the South to the failure to include woodland as a part of the farm area. The growth of cities, development of our factories, industries, mining and the increase in highways and railroads accounted for part of it.

Part of the decline in farm area was due to the war. The high wages in industry and the men called to the colors, led to a shortage of labor which caused parts of farms to be permitted to revert to pasture or woodland and to the abandonment even of entire farms. This was a temporary change in utilization which will be righted as soon as prices for agricultural products are favorable to the expansion of agriculture. Dr. C. S. Wetherman, who compiled the report states.

More significant is the permanent reversion of farm land to forest and brush because it was not fit for agriculture. Throughout the eastern section land has gone back to a more economical use.

Examining the utilization of land within farms the census figures reveal an increase of 5.5 per cent. in the area of improved land but an increase of 26 per cent in the area of unimproved land. The increase in the area of unimproved land is almost equal to the increase in the area of improved land in the semi-arid region where most of the land is grazing land. Generally where farm land as a whole decreased unimproved land was also decreased. However, in twelve States where there was a decrease in all farm land, unimproved land increased. This indicates a change in utilization at the expense of improved land and woodland.

Waiting For Prices

These twelve States all lie in the corn belt and in the East. Just as some farms have reverted to forest land some fields went back to pasture or woodland and will remain there until prices of agricultural products warrant a higher utilization of them.

Woodland for the whole United States decreased by 12 per cent. and was fairly general throughout the country. Where there was area decline and not a mere error of enumeration, this decrease is significant because woodland is a higher form of utilization than unimproved land.

Though there is a decrease in improved pasture land and fallow land, under the spur of war conditions. The significant fact is that production has been maintained and even increased by the more intensive utilization of the better lands and a less intensive use of the poorer lands.

Farm Woman To Have Her Say On Her Problems

By HERBERT LITTLE

(United Press Staff Correspondent) St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 6. (United Press).—The American farm woman is going to have her say here Nov. 8 to 11.

The American Country Life Association, at its sixth annual conference will center its attention on the problems of the farm home.

Leaders in the organizations working on the problems of how the farm woman is to help her husband's cooperative marketing ventures; how the farm is going to be maintained if her son goes to the city, and what kind of a life her daughter is going to marry will address the meeting.

Kenyon L. Butterfield, Amherst, Mass., president of the organization, and Dean Sarah Louise Arnold, Lincoln, will speak on the opening day. Dr. C. J. Galpin, economist in charge of the United States Department of Agriculture-bureau on farm population and rural life, will discuss whether the farm family can afford modern institutions and facilities as far as the city family can.

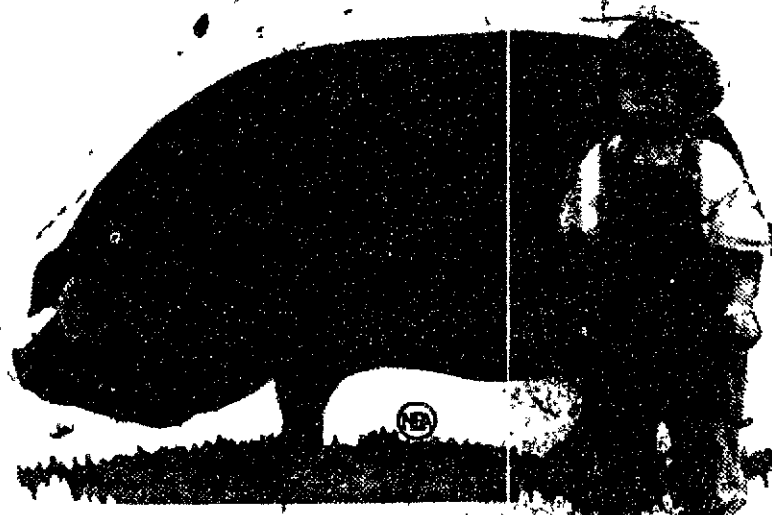

Health in Farm Home

"The Price and Program of Health in the Farm Home" will be discussed by Dr. Caroline Hedger and Dr. N. P. Colwell, both of Chicago. Miss Julia Wade A. Cott, New York; Bradford Knapp, Fayetteville, Ark., and Miss Alma Binzell, Minneapolis, Minn., are also on the Friday program. Late Friday afternoon a conference on "Influences and Institutions That Affect Home Life on the Farm" will be participated in by Akiah W. Taylor, Indianapolis, Ind., representing the church; Miss Katherine M. Cook, Washington, the school; Tait Butler, Memphis, Tenn., business and the store; Dan Wallace, St. Paul, Minn., the press; William R. Radcliffe, Washington, entertainment, and Howard W. Odum, Chapel Hill, N. C. public welfare agencies.

Henry C. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, has been invited to attend the annual conference dinner Friday evening.

Miss Jane McMillon, Raleigh, N. C., will preside Saturday. Speakers include Miss Isabel Bevier, Urbana, Ill.; Dr. Warren H. Wilson, New York; Miss John D. Sherman, Estes Park, Col.; Henrietta Rocco, New York; Mrs. W. G. Martin, Dallas, Texas; Mrs. N. B. Green Smith, Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. W. L. Lita Bane, Urbana, Ill.; Miss S. A. Powell, College Station, Texas; and Miss Josephine Armstrong, Ames, Ia.

TWELVE DEAD TAKEN FROM WEST VIRGINIA MINE WHERE THIRTY ARE STILL ENTOMBED AFTER EXPLOSION OF UNKNOWN ORIGIN

Beckley, W. Va., Nov. 6.—Twelve bodies have been recovered from the pit of the Raleigh-Wyoming Coal Company Glen Rodgers mine, near here, which was wrecked by an explosion this morning, according to a statement issued at noon today by Company officials. 30 men are believed still entombed, it is said.

65 workers went down the main shaft of the mine at dawn. 23 made their way to the surface soon after the blast. They were uninjured. Officials expressed grave fear for the fate of the 30 men who have not yet come up.

Rescue squads were making headway through the debris in the mine at noon and several more bodies were being extricated. The cause of the blast has not been determined definitely, but it is believed to have resulted from a pocket of gas collecting far back in the mine.

The 12 bodies, many of them badly mangled, were brought one at a time, to the little group at the top of the shaft.

Hazleton, Pa., Nov. 6.—One man was killed and four others injured, one seriously, by an explosion of gas in the Jeddo, No. 4 mine of the Jeddo Highland Coal Company, near here today.

Charles Rosier, West Oakdale, a miner was instantly killed by the explosion and John Mundie, Oakdale, a laborer was seriously injured.

Three other miners were removed to the City Hospital with lesser injuries.

Rum Running Outranks Piracy And All Other U. S. Criminal Problems

Washington, Nov. 6.—Rum running outranks piracy and all other criminal problems the United States has ever been called on to face on the high seas, Mrs. Mable Willsbrandt, Assistant Attorney General, told Attorney General Daugherty in her annual report.

"It is likewise one of the greatest single problems in the enforcement of the Federal liquor laws," Mrs. Willsbrandt declared.

Citing trade figures of Scotland and the Bahamas Islands to show the amounts of liquor trickling through the sea gates of the United States, Mrs. Willsbrandt declared that the existing equipment of the coast guard, the only arm of the service at present engaged in rum defense, is wholly inadequate to suppress the rum traffic. She indicated the urgent need of four high-powered seagoing defense boats.

ANNUAL RED CROSS ROLL CALL WILL BE ON ARMISTICE DAY

The Annual Red-Cross Roll Call in Clearfield will be made on Armistice Day, November 11th. This committee in charge has arranged for more than one hundred canvassers to cover the town on Sunday afternoon, besides a canvass of the industrial works. All those who have regularly renewed their memberships will without doubt fall in-line again and it is hoped hundreds more will join.

Your dollar, (just $1 is all that is asked of you) will help to carry on the work of the visiting nurse who has been an invaluable asset to the community in past years. In the year 1922-23 Miss Witherow and Mrs. Lockard made almost 2000 visits to homes, accompanied 50 patients to institutions, gave 441 treatments in their office; the attendance at the Baby Clinic was 516. Besides these activities, the nurse with the assistance of the Red Cross executive and members established a first aid tent and booth at the County Fair, and conducted the Baby Contest; they also had three hygiene classes in Clearfield and one in Houtzdale and organized life saving classes which Mr. Pearce and Mr. Obdrick of the Y. M. C. A. instructed. Miss Witherow has also made investigation visits for the Children's Aid Society.

The dollar that you give will be used for a continuation of these and similar activities looking to the safeguarding and betterment of the public health. You will get big dividends on the investment if it happens to be your home from which disease is kept away by the Red Cross during the coming year.

The necessity for a 100 per cent membership in Clearfield is greater than ever before because the organization now has no surplus in its treasury, and the extent of the work, in fact its very maintenance, depends upon the result of the Roll Call.

BARKING DOG SAVES 16 LIVES WHEN HE DISCOVERS FIRE

New York, Nov. 6.—Gyp was nearly smothered in affections today by 16 persons, who gave their lives to the little dog.

Early today he discovered his second fire within twenty-four hours and by barking at each door of the four-story, furnished-rooming house, where he lives with his owner, Jack Kaufmann, routed the occupants before smoke filled the house.

13 STATES HOLDING ELECTIONS TODAY ON MANY ISSUES

By FRASER EDWARDS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Nov. 6. (United Press)

The curtain went up on the 1924 campaign today as the people of thirteen States went to the polls to vote in bi-elections, which were expected to develop issues that will have an important bearing on the fight for the Presidency.

Fifty managers were centering their interest on the contest in Maryland, New York, Kentucky, Vermont and Ohio. The Coolidge Administration figures in some of these elections. Republican leaders are watching the returns from New York especially, where four members of Congress are to be elected, because of the slight majority of the G. O. P. in the House.

Veteran politicians also will closely scrutinize the results to discover any radical trend, which many are predicting may bring about some startling upsets in politics in the next Presidential election.

The wet and dry issue figures to a degree in the gubernatorial contest in Maryland, where Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Democrat, and Alexander Armstrong, Republican, both have declared in favor of modification of the Volstead act to permit light wines and beer.

Wet and Dry Issue

The prohibition issue also figures in the Vermont Senatorial election. There Porter H. Dale, a dry, who resigned from the House to become the Republican candidate, is running against Pa. H. Pollard, a Democratic captain of President Coolidge who is a wet. Strange as it may seem, reports reaching Washington from "rock-ribbed" Republican Vermont indicate that Pollard "has a chance."

Kentucky, once a Democratic stronghold, dares electing a Governor to succeed Gov. "Ed" Morley, Republican, and party chiefs are interested in seeing whether the "Bloody" Hunting Ground is still debatable territory. Representative William J. Fields, Democrat, is opposing Charles I. Dawson, Republican, Attorney General of Morrow's Administration.

The annual election of the New York Assembly will furnish a test of strength for Gov. "Al" Smith. It is now Democratic by a slight majority and the State Senate is Republican by one vote.

To Fill Vacancies

Vacancies left in the House by the deaths of Representatives Eborian Cochran and Ganly, Democrats, and Mott, Republican, of New York, are to be chosen in the places of the late Representatives Cantill of Kentucky and John W. Rainey of Illinois, both Democrats.

"Pyralis" Ohio is another center of interest. Columbus, Toledo and Akron are electing mayors. These results may furnish a straw vote for the 1924 campaign.

Elections in other States are making a crucial referendum on a party-eight-hour vote for women and children; Massachusetts, municipal elections; principally non-partisan Virginia, election of the Senate and House of delegates and county officers; Rhode Island, Connecticut and Louisiana, municipal elections; Mississippi, election of all State and county officers.

MONSIEUR MAN DIES AS HE CASTS BALLOT

A HORSE FOR WORK

A U. S. CABINET MEMBER'S OPINION

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, of President Coolidge's Cabinet, spoke in Clearfield yesterday and laid the cornerstone of the Moose Temple. He unofficially and repeatedly endorsed the Library for Clearfield. He said in part:—

"It will be the People's University."

"Do not close the avenues of opportunity for the children. If you do, America will become Europeanized."

"Make the child life of America boyish while."

"The BOY and GIRL of today are the MEN and WOMEN of tomorrow."

"It is more important to care for their future than our present."

"My life and experience prove this to me and I carry the message to you."

"More Heart stands for all of this."

Monday, November 6, 1923, will be a memorable day in the annals of Clearfield. At 10 o'clock, of course, because on that day this lodge had as its guest one of the nation's most prominent citizens, the Hon. James J. Davis, of Pittsburgh, Secretary of Labor in the cabinet of President Coolidge and director general of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Mr. Davis came to Clearfield for the purpose of laying the corner stone of the new Moose Temple on East Market street, which handsome building is now up ready for the roof.

Upon his arrival in Clearfield at 10 o'clock yesterday morning he was taken in charge by a committee on reception, headed by D. D. Guppy, D. B. McCarty and F. B. Leavy, of the Moose and a number of the leading business and professional men of the town. After having been given a chance to freshen up at his hotel after his long trip from Washington, Mr. Davis was escorted to the High School building, where he delivered a highly interesting talk to the six hundred students.

His talks were devoted to citizenship and character building with an insight into some of the important problems now confronting the men in charge of the government of this glorious country of ours. His remarks were both timely and effective and were well received by the students.

The B. R. & P. shopmen's male quartette of DuBois was present and enlivened the occasion with some fine singing.

Luncheon At The Dining.

Secretary Davis was tendered a luncheon at the Dining hotel at 1 o'clock, which was participated in by about one hundred and fifty of the prominent business and professional men of the town. Dallas D. Guppy presided and a brief but eloquent introductory of the noted visitor was made by Judge Singleton Bell.

Mr. Davis arose and held the closest attention of his hearers in a forty-five minute talk. He gave an interesting history of the Moose Lodge, which he stated was international in its scope and was made up of 600,000 members, 85 per cent of whom are laboring men, with a woman's auxiliary of 75,000. He said this vast army of men and women were banded together, not alone for social advancement and protection for themselves, but they were particularly interested in looking after the boys and girls of the land. For this purpose the speaker said the Moose Lodge maintained Mooseheart, a home for the children of deceased members of the order who had been left unprotected for by the taking

IDEAL WEATHER AND SPIRITED CONTESTS BRING OUT BIG VOTE

Final Result Will Not Be Known Until Some Time Tomorrow Due to the Heavy Voting.

GO GOT TO BED EARLY

The strenuous political campaign of the past few weeks is resulting in getting the largest vote to the polls today ever cast in Clearfield county. Judgeship contests have always resulted in bringing out a record-breaking vote and the 1923 campaign is living up to past performance.

Another factor which enters into the remarkable vote being polled in every district is the ideal weather, while the fact that municipal elections are being voted for in every district is helping to swell the number of votes.

Much more than ordinary elections is also centered on the County Commemorative fight, due to the important ticket placed in the field following the primary election, the result in the nomination of the "ball board."

Both the Republican and Democratic organizations conducted spirited campaigns and while both claim to be confident of victory, the issue hangs in the balance.

SERVICE-PROGRESS SPECIAL HERE FROM 10 TO 10 TOMORROW

Healed by a salute of locomotive whistles, the Service-Progress special of the New York Central Line, which demonstrates the development of railroading and its relation to the community will arrive tomorrow morning to a twelve hour exhibition of its exceptional displays. Engine "6000" the latest monster Mikado type freight engine which for its weight is the most powerful in the world and which is hauling the big train will signify to Clearfield folk that the Special is open for visitors by a prolonged blast of its mighty whistle.

Whereupon Clearfield citizens will find time for a short pause from their various interests to visit the engine, special train which in 1923 has been given a new lease of life, as well as models, charts, pictures, paintings, moving pictures and many other exhibits stamping it as one of the most notable of all railroad undertakings.

The Service-Progress Special with the DeWitt Clinton train of 1881 which is the first New York Central train and "2925" the famous Willsie engine which holds the record for speed record for locomotives of fifty years old engine and big "6000" port engine are developments on New York Central Line over a span of 92 years as well as progress every branch of railroading. At the same time the accomplishments are translated into terms of what it has meant to the community.

The train will be here from 10 a. m. until 10 p. m. tomorrow at the N. Y. depot and will, indeed, be worth visiting.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE DID WORK WELL

The Publicity Committee in charge of the Library Campaign are to be congratulated on their work. For it has been exceedingly well done and should meet with a fine success.

Failure would be a great surprise, and an everlasting shame and disgrace, showing the pack-offs and tightwads' predominance in our community. For in the last analysis, that is the only type that are against it.

Farming Officials Are In Europe Searching For Markets For U. S. Crops

New York, Nov. 5. (United Press)—A number of public officials and heads of farm organizations are in Europe on the announced intention of hunting additional markets for American farm products and manufactured goods. Included in two parties are E. P. Farley, chairman of the United States Shipping Board; former Admiral L. C. Palmer, E. D. McNary, general passenger agent of the United States lines; E. B. Cornwall, president of the Vermont Farm Bureau Federation; Murray Lincoln, secretary Ohio Farm Bureau, George A. Sharring, Secretary South Dakota Farm Bureau Federation, and E. B. Reid, assistant Washington representative American Farm Bureau Federation.

Washington, D. C. Nov. 6.—President Coolidge today issued his Thanksgiving day proclamation, designating Thursday, November 29, as the national day of prayer and thanksgiving.

"THE FOOL"

BY CHANNING FOLLOCK

W. W. SANFORD

AMIN HERE TODAY

Dilly Gilliam, her mother, Mrs. Gilliam, and her father, Mr. Gilliam, were attending a Christmas party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barnaby, who were celebrating the birth of their son, Dilly, on Christmas day. The party was given by the church, and was a most successful one. Dilly, a fine looking boy, was the center of attraction. He was dressed in a suit and tie, and was very well behaved. He was the only child of the family, and was very much loved by his parents. He was a very bright boy, and was very much interested in the party. He was the only child of the family, and was very much loved by his parents. He was a very bright boy, and was very much interested in the party.

NEW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"We didn't know you were back."

Mrs. Tice returned the bow with an awkward reverence.

"I didn't know you'd been away,

doctor," Jerry said.

"Ten days," the doctor explained,

standing a puffy hand, "attending

the conference on the proper use of scientific candles. It's a subject on which I feel very strongly." He turned to the backed tree upon

which Mr. Barnaby was working

diffidently. "And what a beautiful

tree! The star lights up, I suppose."

"We have hopes," said Dilly sleepily.

"Don't let me interrupt—I've only

dropped in to keep an appointment

with the warden."

"We're all through," said Mrs. Gilliam, dusting her hands, "except for

putting these gifts under the tree.

Mrs. Jewett will be in in a minute,

and the rest. The star is real im-

Tice."

"Speaking of gifts, doctor—" interrupted Mrs. Tice, advancing.

"Yes, dear lady," said the doctor

complacently.

"My husband wanted me to have a little talk with you about his check.

You know, he promised $1000 to believe the parish of the parish house."

"Oh, yes," said Dr. Wadham, shifting his hand to his chin in a gesture

that was a subconscious move of

self-defense when he sensed trouble.

"And since then—well, frankly,

doctor, John was very much upset

about last Sunday's sermon. Mr. Gilchrist preached from the text about

of heaven."

"Always a trifle dangerous,"

agreed the doctor.

"Yes, and last Sunday it seemed

as if he were directing all his remarks at John. We're in the first few, you know, and John says he doesn't like to complete, but there's

getting to be altogether too much of this—bohemism. John says the preachers are more than half to

blame for the present social unrest.

I agree that some of the sermon was positively laudable."

"Mr. Gilchrist is young," the doctor interposed.

"Gilchrist is a nut," Jerry asserted.

"Of course, what John objected to

clears and bookkeepers more

than they could pay for, washed

little stars. John says he doesn't come to be told how to run his business."

"Personally, I'm very fond of Mr.

Gilchrist," Mrs. Gilliam declared.

"The pastor had stock in our stores.

But I don't think he's good in

business. This used to be a really effective church. Now, whenever Mr.

Gilchrist preaches, there's such a crash of undecidable people in the gallery you can hardly get to your seats. We can't have that trouble

with Dr. Wadham."

No one noticed Clara Jewett, who

had entered and stood in the black

shadow that made the choir-room

dear part of the wall.

"Mr. Gilchrist was such a promi-

ng young man," sighed Mrs. Tice.

"So rich and happy."

"And in love," added Dilly.

"He's still rich and in love and, I think, happy," Dr. Wadham affirmed.

"I've told you, he's a nut," Jerry

repeated emphatically.

"Wonder—Mrs. Gilliam contem-

plotted. "He wasn't like this before

he went overseas. Maybe he was gassed—or something."

CHAPTER III

Rhinoceros 1942

CLARA JEWETT advanced, her

arms laden with packages.

"Oh, how do you do, Dr. Wadham?" Dr. Wadham greeted her uneasily.

"I'm very well, thank you. There was a certain distance between uncertainty in her bearing, which

personified Clara Jewett. Until she was 20, she had been a creature of whim and emotion. Her father's death at that time had not been wholly disaster. It had left her with problems to face. Meeting these, she

had learned to think, to reflect, and

to consider.

At 22 the metamorphosis was only

beginning.

"I want to talk to you,"

HE SAID.

half completed. Whim still struggled with purpose. She could not have

marry Daniel Gilchrist. A psychologist would have said it was because

one side of her nature told her he

side that he would be faithful, not only to her but to his ideal. Both sides liked him. That was enough.

It was Jerry who brushed aside

the rather uncomfortable situation.

"Hello, Clara," he said. "This is

Mr. Gilchrist, caught the relief instantly.

"Surprise! Ha!" she laughed. "And you've been waiting for her half an hour."

Mr. Wadham saw an opportunity.

he asked, stepping to her side.

"Thank you, doctor," she replied

as he relieved her. "And Mr. Hinkle's

in there praying for someone to

consult about the Christmas music."

"I told Mr. Hinkle the choir'd better begin by singing, 'Peace, Peace,

With the Loved Ones Far Away,'" the doctor answered.

"The idea seemed to amuse Dilly."

She began chanting, "My Wife's

Gone to the Country, but her pro-

cessional lasted only until her mother

his packages with the others at the foot of the giant tree. Mrs. Tice

room.

"And doctor—about the parish house. Shall I tell my husband you'll

speak to Mr. Gilchrist?"

"Yes," he said. "I think you may

today."

"That done, and done well. Mrs. Tice turned to go. An offer to drive them

home took Mrs. Gilliam and Dilly

with her. Mr. Barnaby still tinkered

with the Star of Bethlehem.

"I think the trouble's outside," he

decided, as though he were to blame,

and hurried about to help the three

into Mrs. Tice's car.

Clara looked as though she wished

Jerry had gone, too.

"It's funny to find you in church,"

she countered, trying to be at ease.

"I want to talk to you," he said

seriously.

"That's just it, Jerry," she object-

ed. "You always want to talk to me,

and always to say something I don't want to hear."

"Why not?"

"I'm in love with someone else."

She said it simply, but not surely. He quickly sensed the tone.

"You're not going to marry Dan

Gilchrist," he declared in his unpleas-

antly emphatic way. "What's the idea of bluffing. We've known each other for years. You know I'm not going to give up anything I want

because it belongs to somebody else.

And I know you're not going to

wears his collar inside before."

"Jerry!"

"Now that's admitted, let's go on."

"Mr. Gilchrist isn't exactly portery-stricken."

"No, he got quite a lot of money

from his father. You like him and when you said 'yes' you thought you were getting someone you liked, and all the rest of it, too. But his thing's gone wrong with Gilchrist, and

you know it."

"Why do you say that?" she asked

quizzically.

"Because, if you didn't before, you

heard it this afternoon. I saw you standing in the door. And I'm going to tell you a few things more." He

was cold now and harsh.

"I don't want to listen," she remonstrated, turning away.

"Maybe—but you will! Do you

has given away nearly one-tenth of

his capital in three months?"

"No, and I don't believe it!"

"All right, ask my father. The old

won't touch his income from Gilchrist

outfitting, and he's preaching such

nonsense that both wardens are complaining this afternoon to Dr. Wad-

ham. I don't want you to throw yourself away on a raving bug."

"And your advice is—"

"Marry me. I'm a nice fellow, too

—and I can give you what you really

care about. You're over your ears

in debt without any chance of paying

up—or cutting down. And you're—

He paused and surveyed her a moment. "Shall we say, twenty-nine in October? I know what it cost you

when your father died, and yet had

to come down a peg. You don't want to keep on—coming down, do you?"

This last deliberately and pointedly.

"And so—you advise me to marry

you?"

"Yes."

She looked at him squarely and

significantly.

"Knowing all I do about you?"

"I don't see how that concerns

you," he answered bravely.

"It proves you don't love me," she

said.

"I want you, and I'm offering marriage to you," he pointed out.

"You haven't said one word of

love."

"I've said 'What's the use bluffing.'"

"I'm a move—more or less—a crazy

dreamer. I'm a little shrewish, perhaps—maybe a little sordid—but I'm sane and I'm solvent. You're good-looking and smart, and a lady. You'll

help my standing and I'll help your

credit. For the rest—we needn't bother each other too much. What do you say?"

She turned on him.

"I think it's—revoltingly world!"

Jerry smiled his cold smile.

"All right," he retorted. He looked at his watch, gathered up his cane

and hat, and moved toward the door.

Stewart Mill, discussing the liberty of speech in press, says: "If all mankind minus one, were of one opinion, and only one person were of the contrary opinion, mankind would be no more justified in silencing that person, than he, if he had the power, would be in silencing mankind." That is the tolerant view. It has a right to his opinion, and the right to express it and everybody should cordially grant him that prominent Jew who gives liberally to all churches, waiting for requests for money, once told us that churches, regardless of creed or belief, were a guarantee of civil and religious liberty and that drew any creedal lines when making contributions further said that he would like to see every city abundance of churches and that their having them was evidence of the city's spiritual life.

Apple Week in Pennsylvania. Many feel that running too much to special weeks for this, that or other purpose. But emphasis upon the advantages of commonwealth as an apple-growing region is not bad. The growers greatly need encouragement. Their has been invaded by western fruit. They get less product than they should, and yet the consumer pays high prices. There is no good reason why Pennsylvania apples should not be profitably sold at prices that are the ability of the average buyer to pay.

Transportation and co-operation are the elements of success. The apples must get from the farm to the market at rates that will not add too much to the cost of the fruit. It was believed at one time that the automobile was to solve this problem. People driving through the country would stop by the wayside and buy apples. But this kind of traffic is too casual and uncertain. The farmer could not count upon customers. They come, or they might not. Meanwhile the apples rot. A steady and well-regulated demand was seen to be the solution.

operation is one secret of the success of the western fruit producers of the Pacific coast have made cause in the distribution of their product. They conducted shrewd advertising campaigns. There are no apparently think that all the good fruit comes from the west. Yet it is on the Atlantic coast that the apple has its finest flavor. The New England growers have done an exhibition to convince the public of this. And apples need not fear the comparison with the west. It is time they came into their own again.

KNOWING ONE'S BUSINESS
Every Man to His Business
 Suppose the Clearfield Trust Company should offer to invest your hard-earned money, or do the buying for your grocery, dry goods or jewelry store, you would doubt its ability to do so, and rightly so, because the Trust Company has not had experience in these lines.
 Now, why ask a friend to become trustee or executor of your estate?
 It is out of his line, and his mistakes may prove costly to the estate.
 The Clearfield Trust Company will be glad to talk over these things with you.

Protect your Farm Machinery

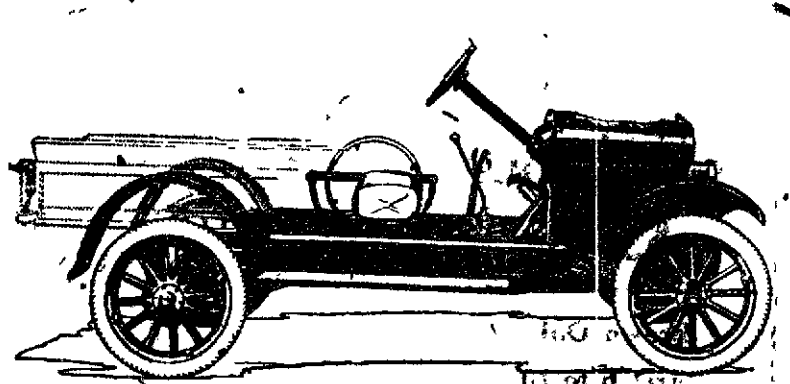

(National Crop Improvement Service) Rust and decay ruin untold millions of dollars' worth of farm machinery every year, and although many years the useful life of the intricate, expensive machines now a part of everyday farm practice.
 A weather-tight machine shed or building is a real investment and a big labor saver. In it, the machines can be conveniently stored, so that they may be quickly brought out for use, and on rainy or snowy days overhauling and repairs can be made in comfort.
 This means that sufficient windows should be in the shed and that it should be wired for electric lights. A temper-saver is a well-planned extension or trouble-lump can be quickly used. A floor light in front of the doors to light up the entrance and the yard, is invaluable for early morning or late evening work.
 A series of sliding doors should give access to the entire length of the shed," says Dr. C. B. Smith, Office of States Relations, Washington, D. C. "This will give immediate access without interference to each machine."
 One little thing often overlooked is that the roof and other stock should be kept out of the building, either by having them to their respective fields, or by erecting a strong fence, that will turn chickens, pigs, etc., around the machine shed and yard. Farm machinery for poultry, etc., is easy but had for the machines and had for the farmer and farm when the spring and summer work comes in a rush. Make your machinery wear out—don't let it rust out.

You can lay OAK over the old worn floors

(National Crop Improvement Service) You can always locate a good farmer by the looks of his house and barns. He is just as particular as the city man, and you will find the up-to-date farmhouse just as a town. Many a farmer and town dweller has renovated the homestead by putting in some French shadows and some hardwood flooring.
 "If you are handy with the hammer, you can do the work yourself, quickly, with most satisfactory results, and at less expense than the cost of a good carpet. At one stroke, you have modernized your home."
 "If the old floor is reasonably true and level, no matter what good it may be, 3/4 inch oak flooring may be nailed over the worn floor, laying the strips at an angle to the old flooring, and the effect will be exactly the same, and the various qualities as great, as if oak floors of greater thickness had been laid in the first place," says W. L. Chaffee, National Oak Flooring Association, Chicago.
 Laying such a floor is not difficult. First strip the wallpaper and grooves, and end-matched and then "driven up" with care affords a smooth unbroken surface. Three-penny finishing nails, driven every 10 inches or closer are recommended for 3/4 inch flooring to obtain the best results. Plans and directions are available from the association on how to figure the amount of material you need, how to lay it properly, and how to fill and finish it with varnish or wax.
 None of the woodwork in the room needs to be disturbed except the quarter-round at the baseboard, and a further advantage is that one room may be finished at a time, so that by laying and finishing each room as you proceed, occupants of the house are not disturbed to any great extent.

BURGLING STORIES NOT SO BAD
 BY FLORENCE DAVIES
 Perhaps you have heard Mrs. Know-it-all Tell-it, who lives just around the corner from you. It is a fact that she lives there, for every neighborhood has one. She's the woman who knows all about everything that anyone does, or she thinks she does, and then runs a close second to the daily paper as a means of disseminating that news. And that's all right. She has a lively imagination which helps to fill in any gaps in her knowledge, and on top of that she is a quick interpreter of what she knows. She knows what to do with it.
 Some people simply call her Mrs. Trouble-Maker, for even when she isn't out with the definite intention of making trouble, her insatiable appetite for gossip is bound to leave a trail of misunderstanding and small or large hurts.
 Sometimes Mrs. Trouble-Maker turns into a regular neighborhood scandal. She takes over the minds and the manners of the community into her own hands. She berates her neighbors behind their backs and tells defamatory stories about people who do not concern her in the least, and some times, for a sister, she does this in a sweet little purr voice and a soft little "in passing" way that does like syrup to the bitter-tasting stuff underneath.
 Well, a New Jersey judge sent that woman, or her twin sister, to jail the other day. The neighbor had had just grown tired of her slanderous tongue, and the judge decided she had better be put where her whisperings or screams, whichever they happened to be, could not be heard.
 The judge remarked that he would have preferred to use the old ducking stool with which they used to deal with gossips in the old days. Our judge was quite right.

Skillful Management
Is Necessity If Dairy
Business Is To Pay
Red-Mite Confesses
And Killing Of Hens

Under present conditions it is impossible to make a financial success of the dairy business unless it is properly and skillfully managed. Markets will never be such that poor cows, regardless of how well they are fed, can return a profit, nor can the good cow poorly kept and managed be profitable. High production is the basis of profitable production. In a study of the cost of producing milk on 690 farms in this state it was found that dairymen whose herds had an average of over 9,000 lbs. of milk per cow per year were producing milk at less than half the cost of those whose herds produced between 3,000 and 4,000 lbs. of milk per cow. No dairyman should feel satisfied with a cow producing less than 7,000 pounds of milk or 275 pounds of butterfat per year. It is highly important to know how much each cow in the herd is producing. The Babcock test and the milk scales provide the only means of really settling this important question and the dairyman who fails to use them is adding an unnecessary hazard to his chances of making a profit.

DAIRYMEN PROFIT BY
"SHOPPING" FOR FEEDS

Wide-awake dairymen of this locality are following in the footsteps of the thrifty housewife. They are shopping these days. However, instead of eyeing the cut glass displays in the windows of the department store, they are in the hay and grain counters of the local merchants. One will find them shopping around the feed warehouses.

Many a Clearfield County dairymen have found that it is as easy to feed and to fatten a cow as it is to feed and to fatten a pig. They have the choice of many feeds for milking cows, and can select the feed which is most efficient and economical.

While the market price of a feed is important and should be taken into consideration, it is no more to its actual feeding value. The warning issued by County Agent Stewart, who says: "One frequently has an opportunity to buy low-grade feeds at what appears to be attractive prices, but in reality they may be more expensive and less profitable than a better grade of feed."

NIXON AT DUBOIS

The County Farm Bureau has arranged to have Professor F. I. Nixon, retired wizard from the Pennsylvania State College, who will speak at a general meeting to be held in the Whitehead Building, DuBois, Friday afternoon, November 23rd, at two o'clock. Doctor Nixon has promised faithfully to be present on that date, so that no one need fear a repetition of the former meeting.

Doctor Nixon is a recognized authority on potato culture, both in this State and in other potato-producing States. He will bring a message of interest to all potato growers, not only along the line of production, but how to market potatoes profitably, as well. Any one interested in potato growing cannot miss hearing this talk. Spread the news of the meeting and plan to attend.

I find myself covered with a stinging spray that is slowly but surely eating into my vitals and sapping the life from my poor, defenseless body. In a short time I shall be beyond "the great divide."

Not long ago I was all power, as I crept over the roosts at night to seek my evening meal. The hens, poor creatures, hardly stirred as I scrambled up their legs and sunk my mouth deep into their flesh. I took great pleasure in drawing the warm blood from their bodies and inflating my own tank frame. After a passing day of hunger, I would waddle back to my crevice in the wall, where I would lie concealed at the break of day. Perhaps I would not seek the crevice, but merely slip to the lower side of the roost where the foolish farmer would not see me. No, I was not alone in this life of gluttony; thousands of my offspring, infested the hen house and caroused with me at night. We were a happy little family cuddled together by day watching the hens stagger about the floor.

Now things are different. The farmer came in this morning and splashed me with a awful spray. My ears and daughters suffered a similar fate. We go together. My only regret is that I did not kill all the hens, for they will now become sleek and fat and will lay many eggs for the farmer. — D. M. Gray, Poultry Extension Specialist at the Pennsylvania State College.

FALL PIGS NEED CARE

With the spring pig crop well on the road to the pork barrel, farmers of Clearfield County are turning their attention to the fall litter. When the little fellows celebrate their first weekly birthday, they are reasonably sure of surviving, but they need care if they are to make real profitable "porkers."

The weaning period is a critical time in the life of a pig, according to experienced hog men and unless prepared for it, a serious setback may result. Just as soon as the litter shows an interest in the contents of their mother's trough, it is time to start feeding them. A low trough for the old sow will help to get the pigs started eating.

Providing a crop is the next step in making profitable pork. Small pigs start well on shell corn, but as they grow, they should be given some middlings and what can be added at the time the pigs are weaned should be ready to wean, they should be getting all they want of a mix of middlings and fish meal. Hog men in the county who have followed this method find that the pigs scarcely miss the sow when she is taken away.

Plenty of water from which the chill has been removed is another important point, according to the extension swine specialist at State College.

TESTERS' SHORT COURSES

The Pennsylvania State College will conduct a short course in the fall, beginning December 1st, and lasting to the 22nd in order to give any man who desires to take a course for cow testing work. There is an opening in this field for young men who have had some dairy experience and desire to get a wider experience by associating directly with a large number of dairy farmers and dairy animals.

Detailed information can be obtained from the Farm Bureau Office for any one who might be interested in this course.

Cost of Producing Pigs
To The Weaning Age

Lancaster County—1923 Spring Litter.

The information for this summary of the cost of producing little pigs to weaning age was secured from records kept by farmers. Special blanks for recording this information were distributed among the farmers of Lancaster County in the fall of 1922, so that they would cover the 1923 spring litter. After weaning, 13 of these records were turned in and summarized.

The following figures represent costs of 48 brood sows raising a total of 306 pigs:

Average No. sows per farm 3.1
Av. no. pigs farrowed per sow 9.2
Av. per cent pigs raised . . . 69
Av. age pigs at weaning 7.5 wks.
Av. wt. pigs at weaning 31.9 lbs.
Av. cost per pig at wean. $5.75
Av. cost per lb. at weaning .185

In making the above calculations costs were figured from the time the sows were bred until the pigs were weaned. They were charged for all feed consumed, pasture, bedding, miscellaneous cash expense and interest and depreciation of buildings and equipment used in their care.

Pasture was charged at 40-50 cents per month per sow when they were on good pasture. The charge was not made where the sows had the use of an exercise lot only and little or no pasture was available. The sows were given credit for manure at the rate of $1.00 per sow for the six months period.

As will be noticed from the percentage of pigs raised, 31% of all pigs farrowed died before they reached weaning age. Their loss varied from one to 66%. All most all of these deaths occurred soon after farrowing time and it is possible to eliminate them largely by better care and management.

The main reasons for loss of little pigs are: lack of proper care and feeding during pregnancy and immediately following farrowing, not enough careful attention to the sow at farrowing time, and in many cases improper housing. Too much bedding in the nest often causes pig losses. Pigs get under the bedding out of sight and sow lie on them without being aware of it.

To care for a sow properly during pregnancy, she should have plenty of good green pasture in summer and winter when green forage is not available a supply of good leguminous hay should be in a rack before them at all times. This will keep the sows busy, contented and exercising. Exercise during the pregnancy period is very important. In addition to pasture or hay she should have enough grain to keep her continually gaining a little in weight until about ten days before farrowing time. At this time the feed should be diminished rather than increased, as many farmers believe. For the last ten days before farrowing only cooling feeds should be given such as mixture of ground oats, middlings and bran in the form of a thin slop. If these feeds do not keep the digestive tract open a light dose of epsom salts should be given. Above all, no heating feeds like corn should be fed at this time.

After farrowing for at least 24 hours no feed should be given, water is sufficient. During winter, ice or cold water should have the chill removed. The sow should then be fed the same as rectly dependent on the size of the litter raised and if we can eliminate the 31% loss of pigs mixture during the suckling period is 400 pounds of corn meal, 500 pounds of middlings, 100 pounds of ground oats and 100 pounds of tankage.

When the sow is due to farrow she should be watched carefully but very quietly so as not to disturb or excite her. If she can come through without assistance all well and good, but if she is having trouble then it is up to the farmer to give her all the assistance possible, for by so doing he may save part of the litter and possibly the sow. The profit or loss on the sow for the year depends on the number of pigs she raises.

Many farmers in this county complain that they get small litters. One very noticeable reason for this is that the sows are kept too fat. A very fat sow will not breed at all or will produce a small litter. Pregnant sows should be kept in good condition but farmers should guard carefully against them becoming too fat. If they are given plenty of exercise and the above precaution followed there is not much danger of them becoming too fat.

There are several more very important things to be kept in mind if one wishes to raise the maximum number of pigs and have them grown out as well as possible before weaning. The small black teeth or tusks which all pigs have at birth should be clipped as soon as possible. These very often injure the sow's teats and little pigs in playing or tussling injure each other. These injuries often become infected and cause death or delayed growth. These teeth are extremely sharp but they can be easily removed with a pair of tinners with no possible injury to the pig.

Guard rails should be built in the farrowing pens so that the small pigs have protection from the sow laying on them. These rails should be eight inches from the floor and eight inches wide. They should be braced from the top rather than from the bottom by means of posts. These posts are as much of a menace as no guard rails.

To insure the small pigs having plenty to eat to make them grow well creeps should be built so that the pig may eat without having to steal from their mother's trough. A part of the pen should be closed off by a rail partition at least two feet high and through this should be an opening eight inches wide and eight inches high. By constructing in this manner the pigs are not required to crawl under a rail and bend their backs each time which may result in a permanently lowered back line.

One of the greatest foes that the hog man has to fight today is internal parasites. To protect the little pigs from these noxious, menacingly located farrowing pen should be used without being thoroughly disinfected. Most any of the creolin preparations will serve if applied thoroughly. Where the pens are not located permanently before farrowing they should be moved to ground that has not been used for some time. At least a crop or two of given such as mixture of ground oats, middlings and bran in the form of a thin slop. If these feeds do not keep the digestive tract open a light dose of epsom salts should be given. Above all, no heating feeds like corn should be fed at this time.

Curwensville's Own Column

William Sherman Weis died at his home on South Thompson street, Monday night, aged about 53 years. He had been ill for the past two years suffering from a complication of diseases. He contracted a dose of the flu about a week ago, and was not able to withstand its ravages. Deceased was born at Indiana Springs, Okla., October 31st, 1870, and was a son of John and Elizabeth Weis. He married to Annie Poole, at Richmond, Pa., about 31 years ago. The family came from Somerset to Jefferson county where they resided until 21 years ago when they removed to Curwensville. For many years the deceased followed stone quarry work and was with the Roaring Run people until that industry suspended operations. Since that time he worked at different vocations, the last being an outside foreman at Dell Sole Leather tannery. Genial in disposition, Mr. Weis had many warm and intimate friends in this town and vicinity. He was a member of no particular denomination but affiliated with the Lutheran church, in which faith he was brought up. Mr. Weis held membership in Bethesda lodge 821, I. O. O. F., being a Past Grand and also in the Order of Red Men. Surviving him are his widow, two sons, Jacob and Ernest and two daughters, Mrs. Viola Gorman and Miss Alice, all residing in or near Curwensville. No time has been set for holding the funeral at this writing and it will be announced later. The family have the united sympathy of this entire community in their hour of bereavement.

Within forty-eight hours Curwensville has had two fires. The first one was discovered Sunday evening and answering the alarm the Rescue boys found the fire to be in the McLaughlin furniture store on South Filbert street. In less than a half hour all danger of a real conflagration was past and fire extinguished. The cause of the fire was informed was from spontaneous combustion, and was near the elevator. A few hundred dollars is about the extent of damage done. Kantar's store which occupies the north room in the block suffered some damage to goods from the smoke. Monday morning early the whistle again summoned the firemen to duty. This time it was on George street and in the home of Harry Rhoads. The fire was started from an overheated hot air furnace. Chemicals were used in this fire and it was soon past devastation. Considerable damage was done to the side walls and bath room.

We were slightly in error in stating that the body of Calvin Price was buried at Bloomington last Friday. The facts are gathered are about as follows: Price was sent to the Warren Insane institution some years ago where he was confined for a long time. Becoming partially recovered from his affliction, but not sufficiently to be permitted to run at large, he was transferred to an institution at Fairview, Wayne county. There he died something over a week ago. A telegram was sent to a son residing in Clearfield but he failed to receive it for several days. He went to Fairview to claim the body of his father, and when he arrived was informed that it had been shipped to Philadelphia to some address not obtainable. But locating the body he returned home. It is now generally thought that the body of Calvin Price was shipped to the city and turned over to one of the many medical schools or to a hospital for scientific purposes. Therefore, the body was not interred in the Bloomington cemetery as was stated though it was no fault of the writer that he so stated.

The Greenwood hunters broke camp yesterday morning after a week of woods tramping after birds. The crowd met with considerable success, the bunch capturing some thirty pheasants besides a few cotton tails.

It looked very much as if all the fairs in seven counties had let loose on Curwensville Saturday and Monday. The woods were full of them, they being more plentiful than rabbits on the mountain top.

away of the breadwinner of the family and were left to the charity of a cold and cruel world. Mooseheart, which is located near Chicago, is a beautiful place of more than one thousand acres, where the children are kept together, educated and given a trade, and equipped to fight life's battles before being turned out to make their way in the world. More than two thousand children have and are enjoying the wonderful advantages of Mooseheart, which is recognized as the greatest institution of its kind anywhere, and which is largely the product of the brain and heart of James J. Davis.

In addition to Mooseheart the order also maintains Moosehaven, a home beneath sunny southern skies, where aged and indigent members of the order spend their declining years in peace and comfort as wards of the organization. Mr. Davis urged Clearfield people generally to familiarize themselves with the principles of the Loyal Order of Moose and then get behind the order and assist in its upbuilding here. He also touched briefly upon the problem of immigration, which he styled the greatest problem confronting America and the American government today. His recital of some of his personal experiences while studying the problem in Europe and at the New York port of entry confirmed his statement as to the gravity of the immigration problem.

During the luncheon the DuBois quartette sang several pretty selections which won for them deserved applause. At the conclusion of Mr. Davis' remarks adjournment was taken to the Driggs theatre, a couple of hundred members of the local Moose lodge, headed by the American Legion band, escorted the speaker to the theatre, where he again expounded the principles of Moosehood and urged its support, also briefly touching upon the affairs of the government and the problems which confront all good citizens.

Following Mr. Davis' remarks at the theatre, the assemblage again accompanied him to the new Moose Temple on Market street, between Third and Fourth streets, where the cornerstone was laid with appropriate and impressive exercises. Secretary Davis again addressing the assemblage and reiterating his championship of the Loyal Order of Moose. That Jimmy Davis is a "whale of a man" and a "horse for work" was the universal verdict of all who met the energetic Secretary of Labor during his strenuous day in Clearfield. His remarks concerning the need for more unions in our schools and the duty of good citizens made a distinct hit with Clearfield people and showed the Secretary of Labor to be a real 100 per cent American, with strong convictions as to what is needed in our country today and the courage of those convictions at all times. He is indeed a worthy citizen and with such men high in the councils of those entrusted with the handling of our government, the average citizen feels assured that the government of the greatest country under the sun is in mighty capable hands, especially so far as the Department of Labor is concerned.

Adam's Apple.

Adam's apple is the prominence made by the thyroid cartilage on the front of the human throat. It is natural on both men and women, but is larger in men. Adam's apple, or pomum Adam, got its name from the notion that when Adam tried to swallow the forbidden fruit it stuck in his throat. The Adam's apple is an aid to the organ of speech.

By reason of the fact that municipal officers are being chosen today, which generally precludes straight party voting in many instances, will result in placing a heavy burden upon the election boards, and therefore the returns will be slow in coming in tonight and final results will not likely be determined until late tomorrow.

LUTHERAN CHURCH NOTES

Last Sunday was a good day at St. John's. The Holy Communion was administered at both morning and evening services. It was one of the largest fall communions during the present pastorate. Five were received into church fellowship by letter. Three children were baptized. At the evening hour the pastor spoke on the theme, "Nearness To God," stressing the importance of this sacrament in the life of the individual who would draw near to God and showed the relationship that exists when that relationship is established and kept. On Wednesday evening at the "Quiet Hour" service Rev. S. Naham, a Lutheran pastor from Nuremberg, Mesopotamia, will speak. All are invited to hear him. Next Sunday we will observe our second annual Laura E. Gilliland Day. A special message and a special program. The offering for the day will go toward the building of the Laura E. Gilliland nursery building in Africa.

Memphis, Tenn.—"Two years ago I was completely run-down and my nerves were a wreck. I could not sleep a room without resting. I could not do my work except a little at a time, and the doctor's medicine did not help me. One day some one threw your little book on to my porch, and in it I read several testimonials of women who had been like myself. I went right out and I got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and before I had taken the whole of that bottle I knew it was helping me. I took six bottles, and then in about three months I took two more. Now I am in perfect health, I do all of my own work and could do more. I can truly say that I know I owe my health to Mrs. J. H. Hingley, 510 Union Ave., Memphis, Tenn.

200 MOTORISTS ARE DISCIPLINED BY THE STATE HIGHWAY DEPT.

Harrisburg, Nov. 5. (U. P.)—The State Highway Department has disciplined during the past month 200 motorists either by revocation of licenses or blacklisting, it was announced today.

There were 112 motorists whose licenses were revoked for various causes. Of this number 78 had been convicted for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

The blacklist contains 83 new names, 64 of whom operated a motor vehicle while intoxicated, making a total of 142 intoxicated who were driving cars and convicted.

THIS COUNTY IS VERY LOW IN PRODUCTION OF LUSCIOUS APPLE

Harrisburg, Nov. 5.—Every county in Pennsylvania contributed to the record yield of apples in Pennsylvania this year, according to figures of the State Department of Agriculture today.

The 67 counties of the state produced a total of 11,542,525 bushels, the greatest number coming from Adams county, and the lowest from Cameron, where 2,854 bushels of apples comprised the yield for this year.

The apple yield for some of the counties follows, in bushels: Adams, 1,022,561; Armstrong, 176,679; Beaver, 100,000; Bedford, 515,678; Berks, 238,736; Blair, 189,054; Bradford, 181,020; Bucks, 184,572; Butler, 215,708; Cambria, 95,203; Cameron, 2,854; Carbon, 68,077; Center, 204,078; Clarion, 37,849; Clearfield, 77,915; Clinton, 106,111; Huntingdon, 154,961; Indiana, 169,214; Jefferson, 38,919.

ANTI-JEWISH RIOTS CONTINUE THRU-OUT THE NIGHT IN BERLIN

Berlin, Nov. 6.—Anti-Jewish riots, which at times threatened to develop into an actual pogrom, raged in Berlin throughout the night and continued today in many parts of the city.

At noon a police report said there had been 100 individual cases of plundering during the night and that such outrages were still going on. Hundreds of Jews, many of them with bloody wounds and torn garments, fled in panic from Berlin this morning.

NEURALGIA FATAL TO 12-YEAR-OLD MUNSON GIRL

Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—Her many friends residing in the Clearfield county sections nearby were shocked on learning that Miss Frances Kane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Kane, Sr., of Munson, had passed away at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Following neuralgia in her teeth which went to the brain. She had been ill only a few days, and 36 hours prior to her demise was unconscious. The family had the services of three doctors and two nurses that her life might be saved, but all in vain. She was 12 years of age, and a few years ago attended the public schools in that place. She was the first of a family of eleven children, to answer the final call. She was known for miles around and held in highest regard. Her death has cast a gloom over the entire community. Funeral services will be held at St. Agnes Catholic church, Morrisdale, at 9 o'clock Thursday morning.

beautiful in its decorations, laurel and yellow chrysanthemums having been artistically arranged by clever hands. Many relatives and friends were present to enjoy the anniversary occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Howe were attended by their six children—Miss Margaret Paul, Frank and Ed. of Morrisdale; Mrs. G. E. Merrill, of Phillipsburg, and Mrs. J. T. Skine, of Tyrone.

Among those present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Leisinger and son, William, of Clearfield. Mrs. Leisinger being a sister to Mr. Howe; Mrs. Ezra Brown, another sister, and Mrs. W. W. Howe, also of Clearfield, and Mrs. Joseph Bonasignour, of LeContes Mills, and Mrs. James Bonasignour, of Clearfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Howe were "at home" to their friends during the day, and many called to extend congratulations and bestow upon them the very best wishes for future years of happy wedded life. A dinner for the immediate family and relatives was served at the family home at 6 o'clock Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Howe, now Miss Marie Dolan, in their younger years were both residents of Clearfield, where they were married on November 6th, 1873, Rev. Father Sheridan, now deceased, performing the ceremony. Most of the time since their marriage they have lived in Morrisdale, where Mr. Howe has been successfully engaged in the mercantile business. They have often enjoyed the confidence and highest respect not only of the people of Morrisdale, but of a large circle of friends in other places.

"RIP'S BOOZY SNOOZE"

SPECIAL ORCHESTRA

Admission: Main Floor 50c, Balcony 35c

Waring's Pennsylvanians, New Victor Artists, at MID-WAY Thursday Night

Second appearance of this famous Orchestra at popular Midway Auditorium hailed with delight by all dance lovers of entire Central Pennsylvania region.

Orchestra composed of twelve men, playing over thirty-eight different instruments valued at $12,000.00. USE TWO PIANOS.

The above picture is that of WARING'S PENNSYLVANIANS, the Orchestra that is truly "unforgettable," and who have just recently returned from New York City, where they have been making Victor Records. While their records have not yet been catalogued for release, it is understood that one of the numbers they featured was "Sleep," which they render in their own inimitable way. On their previous engagement at the Midway, which is located between Phillipsburg and Osceola, they played to one of the largest crowds that ever attended a dance in this section of the state, and so great was their success that the Midway's Booking Manager, Mr. Harry E. Nixon, was literally swamped with requests for their return. So, in line with the Midway's policy of booking nothing but feature attractions, WARING'S were secured for this engagement. It may be their last appearance in this region for some time, so don't miss this opportunity to dance to America's finest dance Orchestra on one of the finest floors in the country. Remember the date, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 8th, and the price of admission is $2.50 per couple, including war tax, while extra ladies and spectators will be charged 55c.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 6. (United Press) Nov. 6.—Agriculture is returning to normality through the steady increase in population and stabilizing of conditions in general, according to reports recently completed by the Institute for Research in Land Economics here, based upon statistics of agricultural production in the United States.

Agricultural production in this country has not decreased in the last decade despite the decline in the number of acres in agricultural sections of the United States, the study of land utilization shows. Only about one-half of the land is in farms and the total farm area increased only approximately 9 per cent. from 1910 to 1920, while the population increased 18 per cent. during the same period.

The increase in farm area was largely in the semi-arid States, where acres are plentiful but the productivity per acre is small. There were fewer acres in farms in 1920 than in 1910 in many of the States in the corn belt and in practically all the States east of the Mississippi. This decrease is of particular significance, the report states, because it took place in the truly agricultural States of the union.

Part of the decrease is accounted for by errors in enumeration and in the South to the failure to include woodland as a part of the farm area. The growth of cities, development of our factories, industries, mining and the increase in highways and railroads accounted for part of it.

Part of the decline in farm area was due to the war. The high wages in industry and the men called to the colors, led to a shortage of labor which caused parts of farms to be permitted to revert to pasture or woodland and to the abandonment even of entire farms. This was a temporary change in utilization which will be righted as soon as prices for agricultural products are favorable to the expansion of agriculture. Dr. C. S. Wetherman, who compiled the report states.

Examining the utilization of land within farms the census figures reveal an increase of 5.5 per cent. in the area of improved land but an increase of 26 per cent in the area of unimproved land. The increase in the area of unimproved land is almost equal to the increase in the area of improved land in the semi-arid region where most of the land is grazing land. Generally where farm land as a whole decreased unimproved land was also decreased. However, in twelve States where there was a decrease in all farm land, unimproved land increased. This indicates a change in utilization at the expense of improved land and woodland.

Waiting For Prices

These twelve States all lie in the corn belt and in the East. Just as some farms have reverted to forest land some fields went back to pasture or wood land and will remain there until prices of agricultural products warrant a higher utilization of them.

Woodland for the whole United States decreased by 12 per cent. and was fairly general throughout the country. Where there was area decline and not a mere error of enumeration, this decrease is significant because woodland is a higher form of utilization than unimproved land.

Though there is a farm crop increase, it was at the expense of improved pasture land and fallow land, under the spur of war conditions. The significant fact is that production has been maintained and even increased by the more intensive utilization of the better lands and a less intensive use of the poorer lands.

Farm Woman To Have Her Say On Her Problems

By HERBERT LITTLE

(United Press Staff Correspondent) St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 6. (United Press).—The American farm woman is going to have her say here Nov. 8 to 11.

The American Country Life Association, at its sixth annual conference will center its attention on the problems of the farm home.

Leaders in the organizations working on the problems of how the farm woman is to help her husband's cooperative marketing ventures; how the farm is going to be maintained if her son goes to the city, and what kind of a life her daughter is going to marry will address the meeting.

Kenyon L. Butterfield, Amherst, Mass., president of the organization, and Dean Sarah Louise Arnold, Lincoln, will speak on the opening day.

Dr. C. J. Galpin, economist in charge of the United States Department of Agriculture bureau on farm population and rural life, will discuss whether the farm family can afford modern institutions and facilities as far as the city family can.

Health in Farm Home

"The Price and Program of Health in the Farm Home" will be discussed by Dr. Caroline Hedger and Dr. N. P. Colwell, both of Chicago. Miss Julia Wade A. Cott, New York; Bradford Knapp, Fayetteville, Ark., and Miss Alma Binzell, Minneapolis, Minn., are also on the Friday program. Late Friday afternoon a conference on "Influences and Institutions That Affect Home Life on the Farm" will be participated in by Akiah W. Taylor, Indianapolis, Ind., representing the church; Miss Katherine M. Cook, Washington, the school; Tait Butler, Memphis, Tenn., business and the store; Dan Wallace, St. Paul, Minn., the press; William R. Radcliffe, Washington, entertainment; and Howard W. Odum, Chapel Hill, N. C. public welfare agencies.

Henry C. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, has been invited to attend the annual conference dinner Friday evening.

Miss Jane McMillon, Raleigh, N. C., will preside Saturday. Speakers include Miss Isabel Bevier, Urbana, Ill.; Dr. Warren H. Wilson, New York; Miss John D. Sherman, Estes Park, Col.; Henrietta Rocco, New York; Mrs. W. G. Martin, Dallas, Texas; Mrs. N. B. Green Smith, Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. W. L. Bane, Urbana, Ill.; Miss S. A. Powell, College Station, Texas; and Miss Josephine Armstrong, Ames, Ia.

Beckley, W. Va., Nov. 6.—Twelve bodies have been recovered from the pit of the Raleigh-Wyoming Coal Company Glen Rodgers mine, near here, which was wrecked by an explosion this morning, according to a statement issued at noon today by Company officials. 30 men are believed still entombed, it is said.

65 workers went down the main shaft of the mine at dawn. 23 made their way to the surface soon after the blast. They were uninjured. Officials expressed grave fear for the fate of the 30 men who have not yet come up.

Rescue squads were making headway through the debris in the mine at noon and several more bodies were being extricated. The cause of the blast has not been determined definitely, but it is believed to have resulted from a pocket of gas collecting far back in the mine.

The 12 bodies, many of them badly mangled, were brought one at a time, to the little group at the top of the shaft.

Hazleton, Pa., Nov. 6.—One man was killed and four others injured, one seriously, by an explosion of gas in the Jeddo, No. 4 mine of the Jeddo Highland Coal Company, near here today.

Charles Rosier, West Oakdale, a miner was instantly killed by the explosion and John Mundie, Oakdale, a laborer was seriously injured.

Rum Running Outranks Piracy And All Other U. S. Criminal Problems

Washington, Nov. 6.—Rum running outranks piracy and all other criminal problems the United States has ever been called on to face on the high seas, Mrs. Mable Willsbrandt, Assistant Attorney General, told Attorney General Daugherty in her annual report.

"It is likewise one of the greatest single problems in the enforcement of the Federal liquor laws," Mrs. Willsbrandt declared.

Citing trade figures of Scotland and the Bahama Islands to show the amounts of liquor trickling through the sea gates of the United States, Mrs. Willsbrandt declared that the existing equipment of the coast guard, the only arm of the service at present engaged in rum defense, is wholly inadequate to suppress the rum traffic. She indicated the urgent need of four high-powered seagoing defense boats.

The Annual Red-Cross Roll Call in Clearfield will be made on Armistice Day, November 11th. This committee in charge has arranged for more than one hundred canvassers to cover the town on Sunday afternoon, besides a canvass of the industrial works. All those who have regularly renewed their memberships will without doubt fall in-line again and it is hoped hundreds more will join.

Your dollar, (just $1 is all that is asked of you) will help to carry on the work of the visiting nurse who has been an invaluable asset to the community in past years. In the year 1922-23 Miss Witherow and Mrs. Lockard made almost 2000 visits to homes, accompanied 50 patients to institutions, gave 441 treatments in their office; the attendance at the Baby Clinic was 516. Besides these activities, the nurse with the assistance of the Red Cross executive and members established a first aid tent and booth at the County Fair, and conducted the Baby Contest; they also had three hygiene classes in Clearfield and one in Houtzdale and organized life saving classes which Mr. Pearce and Mr. Obdrick of the Y. M. C. A. instructed. Miss Witherow has also made investigation visits for the Children's Aid Society.

The dollar that you give will be used for a continuation of these and similar activities looking to the safeguarding and betterment of the public health. You will get big dividends on the investment if it happens to be your home from which disease is kept away by the Red Cross during the coming year.

The necessity for a 100 per cent membership in Clearfield is greater than ever before because the organization now has no surplus in its treasury, and the extent of the work, in fact its very maintenance, depends upon the result of the Roll Call.

BARKING DOG SAVES 16 LIVES WHEN HE DISCOVERS FIRE

New York, Nov. 6.—Gyp was nearly smothered in affections today by 16 persons, who owe their lives to the little dog.

Early today he discovered his second fire within twenty-four hours and by barking at each door of the four-story furnished-rooming house, where he lives with his owner, Jack Kaufmann, routed the occupants before smoke filled the house.

Three weeks ago Gyp found a deserted baby in the hall of his house.

13 STATES HOLDING ELECTIONS TODAY ON MANY ISSUES

By FRASER EDWARDS
Washington, Nov. 6 (United Press)

The curtain went up on the 1924 campaign today as the people of thirteen States went to the polls to vote in bi-elections, which were expected to develop issues that will have an important bearing on the fight for the Presidency.

Fifty managers were centering their interest on the contest in Maryland, New York, Kentucky, Vermont and Ohio. The Coolidge Administration figures in some of these elections. Republican leaders are watching the returns from New York especially, where four members of Congress are to be elected, because of the slight majority of the G. O. P. in the House.

Veteran politicians also will closely scrutinize the results to discover any radical trend, which many are predicting may bring about some startling upsets in politics in the next Presidential election.

The wet and dry issue figures to a degree in the gubernatorial contest in Maryland, where Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Democrat and Alexander Armstrong, Republican, both have declared in favor of modification of the Volstead act to permit light wines and beer.

The prohibition issue also figures in the Vermont Senatorial election. There Porter H. Dale, a dry, who resigned from the House to become the Republican candidate, is running against Paul H. Pollard, a Democratic captain of President Coolidge who is a wet. Strange as it may seem, reports reaching Washington from "rock-ribbed" Republican Vermont indicate that Pollard "has a chance."

Kentucky, once a Democratic stronghold, dares electing a Governor to succeed Gov. "Ed" Morley, Republican, and party chiefs are interested in seeing whether the "Bloody" Hunting Ground is still debatable territory. Representative William J. Fields, Democrat, is opposing Charles I. Dawson, Republican, Attorney General of Morrow's Administration.

The annual election of the New York Assembly will furnish a test of strength for Gov. "Al" Smith. It is now Democratic by a slight majority and the State Senate is Republican by one vote.

To Fill Vacancies

Vacancies left in the House by the deaths of Representatives Eborian Cochran and Ganly, Democrats, and Mott, Republican, of New York, are to be chosen in the places of the late Representatives Cantill of Kentucky and John W. Rainey of Illinois, both Democrats.

"Pyralis" Ohio is another center of interest. Columbus, Toledo and Akron are electing mayors. These results may furnish a straw vote for the 1924 campaign.

Elections in other States are making a crucial referendum on a party-eight hour vote for women and children; Massachusetts, municipal elections; principally non-partisan Virginia, election of the Senate and House of delegates and county officers; Rhode Island, Connecticut and Louisiana, municipal elections; Mississippi, election of all State and county officers.

MONSIEUR MAN DIES AS HE CASTS BALLOT

Menasha, Pa., Nov. 6.—As Andrew Wanko, 76, was casting his ballot in the first precinct of Monaca this morning, he was stricken with heart failure and died.

A U. S. CABINET MEMBER'S OPINION

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, of President Coolidge's Cabinet, spoke in Clearfield yesterday and laid the cornerstone of the Moose Temple. He unofficially and repeatedly endorsed the Library for Clearfield. He said in part: "It will be the People's University."

"Do not close the avenues of opportunity for the children. If you do, America will become Europeanized."

"Make the child life of America worth while."

"The BOY and GIRL of today are the MEN and WOMEN of tomorrow."

"It is more important to care for their future than our present."

"My life and experience prove this to me and I carry the message to you."

Monday, November 6, 1923, will be a memorable day in the annals of Clearfield. At 10 o'clock, of course, because on that day this lodge had as its guest one of the nation's most prominent citizens, the Hon. James J. Davis, of Pittsburgh, Secretary of Labor in the cabinet of President Coolidge and director general of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Mr. Davis came to Clearfield for the purpose of laying the corner stone of the new Moose Temple on East Market street, which handsome building is now up ready for the roof.

Upon his arrival in Clearfield at 10 o'clock yesterday morning he was taken in charge by a committee on reception, headed by D. D. Guppy, D. B. McCarty and F. B. Leavy, of the Moose and a number of the leading business and professional men of the town. After having been given a chance to freshen up at his hotel after his long trip from Washington, Mr. Davis was escorted to the High School building, where he delivered a highly interesting talk to the six hundred students.

His talks were devoted to citizenship and character building with an insight into some of the important problems now confronting the men in charge of the government of this glorious country of ours. His remarks were both timely and effective and were well received by the students.

Luncheon At The Dining Room. Secretary Davis was tendered a luncheon at the Dining Room at 1 o'clock, which was participated in by about one hundred and fifty of the prominent business and professional men of the town. Dallas D. Guppy presided and a brief but eloquent introductory of the noted visitor was made by Judge Singleton Bell.

Mr. Davis arose and held the closest attention of his hearers in a forty-five minute talk. He gave an interesting history of the Moose Lodge, which he stated was international in its scope and was made up of 600,000 members, 85 per cent of whom are laboring men, with a woman's auxiliary of 75,000. He said this vast army of men and women were banded together, not alone for social advancement and protection for themselves, but they were particularly interested in looking after the boys and girls of the land. For this purpose the speaker said the Moose Lodge maintained Mooseheart, a home for the children of deceased members of the order who had been left unprotected for by the taking

Final Result Will Not Be Known Until Some Time Tomorrow Due to the Heavy Voting.

GO TO BED EARLY

The strenuous political campaign of the past few weeks is resulting in getting the largest vote to the polls today ever cast in Clearfield county. Judgeship contests have always resulted in bringing out a record-breaking vote and the 1923 campaign is living up to past performance.

Another factor which enters into the remarkable vote being polled in every district is the ideal weather, while the fact that municipal elections are being voted for in every district is helping to swell the number of votes.

Much more than ordinary elections is also centred on the County Commemorative fight, due to the important ticket placed in the field following the primary election, the result in the nomination of the "ball board."

Both the Republican and Democratic organizations conducted a spirited campaign and while both claim to be confident of victory, the issue hangs in the balance.

SERVICE-PROGRESS SPECIAL HERE FROM 10 TO 10 TOMORROW

Healed by a salute of locomotive whistles, the Service-Progress special of the New York Central Line, which demonstrates the development of railroading and its relation to the community will arrive tomorrow morning to a twelve hour exhibition of its exceptional displays. Engine "6000" the latest monster Mikado type freight engine which for its weight is the most powerful in the world and which is hauling the big train will signify to Clearfield folk that the Special is open for visitors by a prolonged blast of its mighty whistle.

Whereupon Clearfield citizens will find time for a short pause from their various interests to visit the engine, special train which in 1923 has been given a new lease of life, as well as models, charts, pictures, paintings, moving pictures and many other exhibits stamping it as one of the most notable of all railroad undertakings.

The Service-Progress Special with the DeWitt Clinton train of 1881 which is the first New York Central train and "2025" the famous Willsie Fair engine which built the nation's first record for locomotive in fifty years old engine and big "6000" porters locomotive development on New York Central Line over a span of 92 years as well as progress every branch of railroading. At the same time the accomplishments are translated into terms of what it has meant to the community.

The train will be here from 10 a. m. until 10 p. m. tomorrow at the N. Y. depot and will, indeed, be worth visiting.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE DID WORK WELL

The Publicity Committee in charge of the Library Campaign are to be congratulated on their work. For it has been exceedingly well done and should meet with a fine success. Failure would be a great surprise, and an everlasting shame and disgrace, showing the pack-offs and tightwads' predominance in our community. For in the last analysis, that is the only type that are against it.

A Friend of the Library

Washington, D. C. Nov. 6.—President Coolidge today issued his Thanksgiving day proclamation, designating Thursday, November 29, as the national day of prayer and thanksgiving.

"THE FOOL"

BY CHANNING FOLLOCK

W. W. SANFORD

AMIN HERE TODAY

Dilly Gilliam, her mother, Mrs. Gilliam, and her father, Mr. Gilliam, were attending a Christmas party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wadham. The party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Wadham, who were celebrating their anniversary. The party was a very successful one, and all enjoyed it very much.

NEW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"We didn't know you were back."

Mrs. Tice returned the bow with

an awkward reverence.

"I didn't know you'd been away,

doctor," Jerry said.

"Ten days," the doctor explained,

seismic candles. It's a subject

on which I feel very strongly." He

turned to the backed tree upon

tree! The star lights up, I suppose."

"We have hopes," said Dilly sleepingly.

"Don't let me interrupt—I've only

dropped in to keep an appointment

with the warden."

"We're all through," said Mrs. Gil-

putting these gifts under the tree.

Mrs. Jewett will be in in a minute,

and the rest. The star is real immense diamonds. A gift from Mrs.

Tice."

"Speaking of gifts, doctor—" interrupted Mrs. Tice, advancing.

"Yes, dear lady," said the doctor

complacently.

"My husband wanted me to have a

You know, he promised $1000 to be-

lieve the parish of the parish house."

that was a subconscious move of

"And since then—well, frankly,

christ preached from the text about

of heaven."

"Always a trifle dangerous,"

agreed the doctor.

"Yes, and last Sunday it seemed

marks at John. We're in the first

few, you know, and John says he

positively laudable."

"Mr. Gilchrist is young," the doctor interposed.

"Gilchrist is a nut," Jerry asserted.

"Of course, what John objected to

little stars. John says he doesn't come to be told how to run his business."

Gilchrist," Mrs. Gilliam declared.

fective church. Now, whenever Mr.

Gilchrist preaches, there's such a

crash of undesirable people in the gallery you can hardly get to your seat. We can't have that trouble

with Dr. Wadham."

No one noticed Clara Jewett, who

dark part of the wall.

"Mr. Gilchrist was such a promi-

ng young man," sighed Mrs. Tice.

"So rich and happy."

"And in love," added Dilly.

"He's still rich and in love and, I think, happy," Dr. Wadham affirmed.

"I've told you, he's a nut," Jerry

repeated emphatically.

plotted. "He wasn't like this before

Rhinoceros 1923

CLARA JEWETT advanced, her

arms laden with packages.

"Oh, how do you do, Mrs. Jewett,"

Dr. Wadham greeted her

uneasily.

"I'm very well, thank you. There was a certain distance between us

uncertainty in her bearing, which

lyly disaster. It had left her with

to consider.

beginning.

"I WANT TO TALK TO YOU,"

HE SAID.

half completed. Whim still struggled

marry Daniel Gilchrist. A psycholo-

only to her but to his ideal. Both sides liked him. That was enough.

the rather uncomfortable situation.

"Hello, Clara," he said. "This is

Mrs. Gilliam, caught the relief instantly.

"Surprise! Ha!" she laughed. "And you've been waiting for her half an

hour."

Mr. Wadham saw an opportunity.

he asked, stepping to her side.

"Thank you, doctor," she replied

in there praying for someone to

consult about the Christmas music."

"I told Mr. Hinkle the choir'd better begin by singing, 'Peace, Perfect

Peace, With the Loved Ones Far Away,'" the doctor answered.

"The idea seemed to amuse Dilly.

She began chanting, 'My Wife's

Gone to the Celestity, but her pro-

cessional lasted only until her mother

room.

"And doctor—about the parish

house. Shall I tell my husband you'll

speak to Mr. Gilchrist?"

"Yes," he said. "I think you may

today."

"That done, and done well. Mrs. Tice

home took Mrs. Gilliam and Dilly

with the Star of Bethlehem.

"I think the trouble's outside," he

into Mrs. Tice's car.

Clara looked as though she wished

Jerry had gone, too.

"It's funny to find you in church,"

she countered, trying to be at ease.

"I want to talk to you," he said

seriously.

"That's just it, Jerry," she object-

ed. "You always want to talk to me,

want to hear."

"Why not?"

"I'm in love with someone else."

She said it simply, but not surely. He

quickly sensed the tone.

"You're not going to marry Dan

Gilchrist," he declared in his unpleas-

other for years. You know I'm not going to give up anything I want

because it belongs to somebody else.

wears his collar inside before."

"Jerry!"

"Now that's admitted, let's go on."

"Mr. Gilchrist isn't exactly positively stricken."

from his father. You like him and

all the rest of it, too. But this thing's

you know it."

"Why do you say that?" she asked

quizzically.

"Because, if you didn't before, you

heard it this afternoon. I saw you

standing in the door. And I'm going

was cold now and harsh.

"I don't want to listen," she remon-

strated, turning away.

"Maybe—but you will! Do you

his capital in three months?"

heresy that both wardens are coming this afternoon to complain to Dr.

Wadham. I don't want you to throw

"And your advice is—"

and I can give you what you really

in debt without any chance of paying

ment. "Shall we say, twenty-nine in October? I know what it cost you

when your father died, and yet had

This last deliberately and pointedly.

"And so—you advise me to marry

you?"

"Yes."

She looked at him squarely and

significantly.

"Knowing all I do about you?"

you," he answered bravely.

"It proves you don't love me," she

said.

"I want you, and I'm offering marriage to you," he pointed out.

love."

"I've said 'What's the use bluffing.'

I'm a move—heavy, not a crazy

dreamer. I'm a little shrewish, perhaps—maybe a little sullen—but I'm

do you say?"

She turned on him.

Jerry smiled his cold smile.

Stewart Mill, discussing the liberty of speech in press, says: "If all mankind minus one, were of one opinion, and only one person were of the contrary opinion, mankind would be no more justified in silencing the person, than he, if he had the power, would be in silencing mankind." That is the tolerant view. It has a right to his opinion, and the right to express and everybody should cordially grant him that

rominent Jew who gives liberally to all churches, waiting for requests for money, once told us that churches, regardless of creed or belief, were a guarantee of civil and religious liberty and that drew any creedal lines when making contributions further said that he would like to see every city abundance of churches and that their having them evidence of the city's spiritual life.

Apple Week in Pennsylvania. Many feel that running too much to special weeks for this, that or other purpose. But emphasis upon the advantages of commonwealth as an apple-growing region is not bad. The growers greatly need encouragement. Their has been invaded by western fruit. They get less product than they should, and yet the consumer pays high prices. There is no good reason why Pennsylvania apples should not be profitably sold at prices that are the ability of the average buyer to pay.

Transportation and co-operation are the elements of success. The apples must get from the farm to the market at rates that will not add too much to the cost of the fruit. It was believed at one time that the automobile was to solve this problem. People driving through the country would stop by the wayside and buy apples. But this kind of traffic is too casual and uncertain. The farmer could not count upon customers. They come, or they might not. Meanwhile the apples are rotting. A steady and well-regulated demand was seen to be the solution.

operation is one secret of the success of the western fruit producers of the Pacific coast have made cause in the distribution of their product. They have conducted shrewd advertising campaigns. There are no apparently think that all the good fruit comes from the Pacific coast that the apple of the East is inferior. The New England growers have done an exhibition to convince the public of this. Pennsylvania apples need not fear the comparison with the fruit of the Pacific coast. It is time they came into their own again.

Suppose the Clearfield Trust Company should offer to invest your hard-earned money, or do the buying for your grocery, dry goods or jewelry store, you would doubt its ability to do so, and rightly so, because the Trust Company has not had experience in these lines.

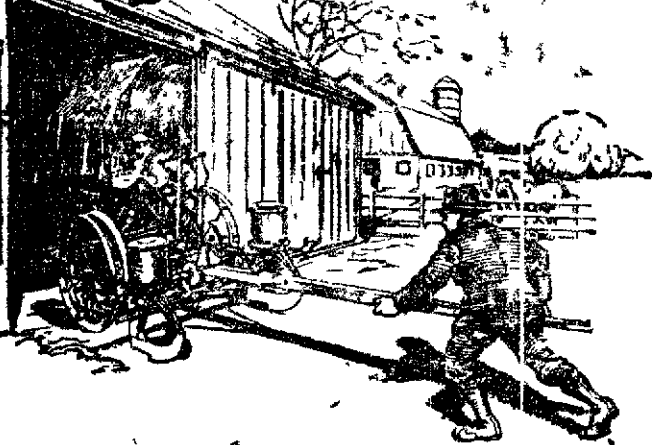

Now, why ask a friend to become trustee or executor of your estate?

It is out of his line, and his mistakes may prove costly to the estate.

The Clearfield Trust Company will be glad to talk over these things with you.

CLEARFIELD TRUST CO.

(National Crop Improvement Service) Rust and decay ruin untold millions of dollars' worth of farm machinery every year, and although by many years the useful life of the intricate, expensive machines now a part of everyday farm practice.

A weather-tight machine shed or building is a real investment and a big labor saver. In it, the machines can be conveniently stored, so that they may be quickly brought out for use, and on rainy or snowy days overhauling and repairs can be made in comfort.

This means that sufficient windows should be in the shed and that it should be wired for electric lights. A temper-saver is a well-planned extension or trouble-lump can be quickly used. A floor light in front of the doors to fight

up the entrance and the yard, is invaluable for early morning or late evening work.

A series of sliding doors should give access to the entire length of the shed," says Dr. C. B. Smith, Office of States Relations, Wash., D. C. "This will give immediate access without interference to each machine."

One little thing often overlooked is that the roof and other stock should be kept out of the building, either by having them to their respective fields, or by erecting a strong fence, that will turn chickens, pigs, etc., around the machine shed and yard. Farm machinery for poultry, etc., is easy but had for the machines and had for the farmer and farm when the spring and summer work comes in a rush. Make your machinery wear out—don't let it rust out.

(National Crop Improvement Service) You can always locate a good farmer by the looks of his house and barns. He is just as particular as the city man, and you will find the up-to-date farmhouse just as a town. Many a farmer and town dweller has renovated the homestead by putting in some French shadows and some hardwood flooring.

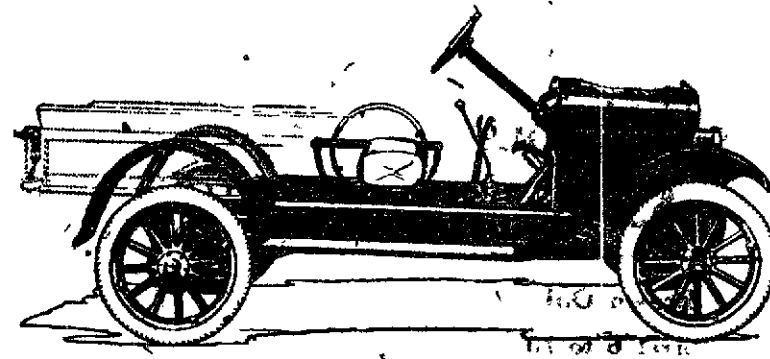

"If you are handy with the hammer, you can do the work yourself, quickly, with most satisfactory results, and at less expense than the cost of a good carpet. At one stroke, you have modernized your home."

"If the old floor is reasonably true and level, no matter what good it may be, 3/4 inch oak flooring may be nailed over the worn floor, laying the strips at an angle to the old flooring, and the effect will be exactly the same, and the various qualities as great, as if oak floors of greater thickness had been laid in the first place," says W. L. Chaffee, National Oak Flooring Association, Chicago.

Laying such a floor is not difficult. First strip the wallpaper and grooves, and end-matched and then "driven up" with care affords a smooth unbroken surface. Three-penny finishing nails, driven every 10 inches or closer are recommended for 3/4 inch flooring to obtain the best results. Plans and directions are available from the association on how to figure the amount of material you need, how to lay it properly, and how to fill and finish it with varnish or wax.

None of the woodwork in the room needs to be disturbed except the quarter-round at the baseboard, and a further advantage is that one room may be finished at a time, so that by laying and finishing each room as you proceed, occupants of the house are not disturbed to any great extent.

Progress Editorial For Women

By FLORENCE DAVIES

Perhaps you know Mrs. Know-it-all Tell-it, who lives just around the corner from you. It is a fact that she lives there, for every neighborhood has one. She's the woman who knows all about everything that anyone does, or she thinks she does, and then runs a close second to the daily paper as a means of disseminating that news. And that's all right, if she has a lively imagination with which to fill in any gaps in her knowledge, and on that point she is a good deal more correct than she knows.

Some people simply call her Mrs. Trouble-Maker, for even when she isn't out with the definite intention of making trouble, her insatiable appetite for gossip is bound to leave a trail of misunderstanding and small or large hurts.

Sometimes Mrs. Trouble-Maker turns into a regular neighborhood gossip. She takes over the minds and the manners of the community into her own hands. She betrays her neighbors behind their backs and tells the most intimate stories about people who do not concern her in the least, and some times, for a sister, she does this in a sweet little purr and a soft little smile, saying that it is like a little bit of the bitter-tasting stuff underneath.

Well, a New Jersey judge sent that woman, or her twin sister, to jail the other day. The neighbor had had just grown tired of her slanderous tongue, and the judge decided she had better be put where her whisperings or screams, whichever they happened to be, could not be heard.

The judge remarked that he would have preferred to use the old ducking stool with which they used to deal with gossips in the old days. Our grandfathers weren't so stupid, after all, you say, for they had a way of attending to gossip and scandal which was quite effective.

But when the town had no ducking stool, the judge resorted to a money fine, and a jail sentence instead.

But whose business is it what you do, or she thinks she does, and then runs a close second to the daily paper as a means of disseminating that news. And that's all right, if she has a lively imagination with which to fill in any gaps in her knowledge, and on that point she is a good deal more correct than she knows.

Not so fast, No, you haven't a right to say it, and Mrs. Know-it-all Tell-it didn't have a right to say it.

Spreading unkind reports, pecking at people's character with little insinuations of ill will and criticism, is just as destructive to them as stealing dollars out of their pocketbooks and taking away from them what they value more than they do their possessions. It robs them just as definitely as if you entered their homes and walked out with their solid silver and gold watches.

"But," you say, "what if it's true? But who's to know what's quite true, and what isn't? Who's to know both sides of the story perfectly, and on top of that who is to appoint himself judge and herald both in one to decide upon the truth of the tale and to pass it on to do harm?"

If the New Jersey woman had gone around the neighborhood stealing clothes off the line, or running off with the provisions which the grocer left at the back door, no one would be so wondered when the judge had led her off to jail. But because she went around stealing little bits of happiness and peace of mind and knocking little corners off folks' character, people thought it quite a story to tell with which they used to deal with gossips in the old days. Our

U. S. GOVERNMENT NOT DISCOURAGED IN PEACE EFFORTS

Washington, Nov. 6.—The American Government does not feel discouraged over the present trend of negotiations to bring about an economic expert conference to examine Germany's reparations capacity, it was stated by President Coolidge's behalf at the White House today.

Charles Deviney of Winburne was a Clearfield visitor yesterday. John Williams of Gansam transacted business in Clearfield Monday. Mr. Thomas chaperoned a crowd of 30.000 folks to Lock Haven Saturday for the game.

Live As A Forager.

Many people ask concerning live for an early spring pasture.
There is a justification for this question, for rye ranks high as a winter and early crop for hogs.
Rye should be sown at once or even before this time for best results, but in most sections rye can yet be sown and be a benefit to the hogman. As any other green crop, rye should be handled to get the maximum amount of fresh green growth. Thus, rye is a splendid crop to sow on the fields where the hogs will run this winter and early spring.
Allow the maximum use during early spring while the growth is still tender. After the plant begins to get coarse and woody, it is of little use to the swine herd.
The common mistake made by men sowing rye is depending on it for an early forage for spring pigs.

Spring pigs do not use much forage until after they are weaned and by careful management a spring crop can be ready for them by that time. Rye is too far gone when the spring pigs are ready for it and therefore rye is not to be recommended for pasture for spring pigs. Rye's value lies in its use this winter and early spring by the brood sows and fall shoats. It provides outside exercise lots, a good amount of growth and then can be turned under next April or May adding humus to the soil for another crop. Try to get one of the dry hog lots. The cultivation will help cleanse the ground and the green rye will help the pigs and brood sows.

Ear Marking the Litters.

During the years past, when nothing was kept except a couple of nondescript brood sows perhaps there wasn't any need to ear mark the pigs. We were just keeping hogs, and when these pigs got large enough we would kill them or sell them.
Breeding had no place in our swine management and we did not expect to keep any of those pigs for the breeding herd.

Now we are growing pur-breds of the farm, and yet some of the details that distinguish our previous production methods are continued. Probably this is due to the fact that we don't change everything at once and perhaps it is wise that we don't.
A gradual change, well planned and carefully thought out is always safer. Thus, the man who is paying attention to his business will find it a good plan to change some of these details and one of the most important changes would be the marking of his litters. The entire litter is given the same ear mark and enables the feeder to observe which sow and which cross is producing the best feedlot pigs.
Also it enables one to keep easily a complete record of his critter.

Just what system a man uses is of minor importance. He is the individual to be considered. A system commonly used by the community swine Association members in Pennsylvania is one which uses the right ear for units and the left ear for tens.
A notch next to the head on the lower edge of the right ear means one, on the outer tip of the same edge 3, and in the upper edge a notch means 5. 10 30 and 50 are located in the same positions on the left ear.
Now by putting notches in these positions, litters up to 100 can easily be marked with a very few notches. The sum of the notches is the number of the litter.

Again the system used is unimportant. What is desired is a mark which enables you to keep individual records, to know at a glance what each is doing, and to be able to always trace an individual of your breeding.

TESTED HOLSTEINS

should get in touch with the Farm Bureau at once, as they have, at the present, calls for quite a number of cows, especially ones that are due to freshen and will give approximately nine thousand pounds, or better, of milk. Write direct to the Farm Bureau stating age, approximate production and price.

Business Is To Pay

Under present conditions it is impossible to make a financial success of the dairy business unless it is properly and skillfully managed. Markets will never be such that poor cows, regardless of how well they are fed, can return a profit, nor can the good cow poorly kept and managed be profitable. High production is the basis of profitable production. In a study of the cost of producing milk on 690 farms in this state it was found that dairymen whose herds had an average of over 9,000 lbs. of milk per cow per year were producing milk at less than half the cost of those whose herds produced between 3,000 and 4,000 lbs. of milk per cow. No dairyman should feel satisfied with a cow producing less than 7,000 pounds of milk or 275 pounds of butterfat per year. It is highly important to know how much each cow in the herd is producing. The Babcock test and the milk scales provide the only means of really settling this important question and the dairyman who fails to use them is adding an unnecessary hazard to his chances of making a profit.

Wide-awake dairymen of this locality are following in the footsteps of the thrifty housewife.
They are shopping these days.
However, instead of eyeing the candy displays in the windows or the bag-in counters of the local groceries, one will find them shopping around the feed houses.

Many a Clearfield County dairymen has found that it is not so much the feed itself as the way it is fed that counts.
They have the choice of many feeds for milking cows, and one of the most efficient and economical.

While the market price of a feed is important and should be taken into consideration, it is no more to its actual feeding value in the warning issued by County Agent Stewart, who says: "One frequently has an opportunity to buy low-grade feeds at what appear to be attractive prices, although they may be more expensive and less profitable than a better grade of feed."

"There are many mixed feeds now sold on the market. The thing for the dairymen to do is to figure out the amount of nutrients he can secure for a dollar invested in these feeds based on the guarantee, and compare it with well known unmixed concentrates. Then buy that which will give the greatest feeding value per dollar, whether it be mixed or unmixed."

NIXON AT DUBOIS

The County Farm Bureau has arranged to have Professor F. I.
Nixon, retired wizard from the Pennsylvania State College, who will speak at a general meeting to be held in the Whitehead Building, DuBois, Friday afternoon, November 23rd, at two o'clock. Doctor Nixon has promised faithfully to be present on that date, so that no one need fear a repetition of the former meeting.

Doctor Nixon is a recognized authority on potato culture, both in this State and in other potato producing States. He will bring a message of interest to all potato growers, not only along the line of production, but how to market potatoes profitably, as well. Any one interested in potato growing cannot miss hearing this talk. Spread the news of the meeting and plan to attend.

Red-Mite Confesses
And Killing Of Hens

I find myself covered with a stinging spray that is slowly but surely eating into my vitals and sapping the life from my poor, defenseless body. In a short time I shall be beyond "the great divide."

Not long ago I was all powerful, as I crept over the roosts at night to seek my evening meal.
The hens, poor creatures, hardly stirred as I scrambled up their legs and sunk my mouth deep into their flesh. I took great pleasure in drawing the warm blood from their bodies and inflating my own tank frame. After a passing meal, I would waddle back to my crevice in the wall, where I would lie concealed at the break of day. Perhaps I would not seek the crevice, but merely slip to the lower side of the roost where the foolish females would not see me. No, I was not alone in this life of gluttony; thousands of my offspring infested the hen house and caroused with me at night.
We were a happy little family cuddled together by day watching the hens stagger about the floor.

Now things are different. The farmer came in this morning and splashed me with this awful spray. My sons and daughters suffered a similar fate. We go together. My only regret is that I did not kill all the hens, for they will now become sleek and fat and will lay many eggs for the farmer. — D. M. Gray, Poultry Extension Specialist at the Pennsylvania State College.

With the spring pig crop well on the road to the pork barrel, farmers of Clearfield County are turning their attention to the fall litter. When the little fellows celebrate their first weekly birthday, they are reasonably sure of surviving, but they need care if they are to make real profitable "porkers."

The weaning period is a critical time in the life of a pig, according to experienced hog men and unless prepared for it, a serious setback may result. Just as soon as the litter shows an interest in the contents of their mother's trough, it is time to start feeding them. A low trough for the old sow will help to get the pigs started eating.

Providing a crop is the next step in making profitable pork.
Small pigs start well on shelved, coarse ground corn to which some middlings and what can be added at the time the pigs are weaned. They should be ready to wean, they should be getting all they want of a mixture of middlings and 100 pounds of tankage or fish meal.
Hog men in the county who have followed this method find that the pigs scarcely miss the sow when she is taken away.

Plenty of water from which the chill has been removed is another important point, according to the extension swine specialist at State College.

The Pennsylvania State College will conduct a short course in the fall beginning December 1st, and last to the 22nd including the following: A course for dairymen, a course for cow testing work. There is an opening in this field for young men who have had some dairy experience and desire to get a wider experience by associating directly with a large number of dairy farmers and dairy animals.

Detailed information can be obtained from the Farm Bureau Office for any one who might be interested in this course.

Cost of Producing Pigs
To The Weaning AgeLancaster County—1923 Spring Litter.

The information for this summary of the cost of producing little pigs to weaning age was secured from records kept by farmers. Special blanks for recording this information were distributed among the farmers of Lancaster County in the fall of 1922, so that they would cover the 1923 spring litter. After weaning, 13 of these records were turned in and summarized.

The following figures represented costs of 48 brood sows raising a total of 306 pigs:

Average No. sows per farm 3.1
Av. no. pigs farrowed per sow 9.2
Av. per cent pigs raised . . . 69
Av. age pigs at weaning 7.5 wks.
Av. wt. pigs at weaning 31.9 lbs.
Av. cost per pig at wean. $5.75
Av. cost per lb. at weaning .185

In making the above calculations costs were figured from the time the sows were bred until the pigs were weaned. They were charged for all feed consumed, pasture, bedding, miscellaneous cash expense and interest and depreciation of buildings and equipment used in their care.

Pasture was charged at 40-50 cents per month per sow when they were on good pasture. The charge was not made where the sows had the use of an exercise lot only and little or no pasture was available. The sows were given credit for manure at the rate of $1.00 per sow for the six-month period.

As will be noticed from the percentage of pigs raised, 31% of all pigs farrowed died before they reached weaning age. Their loss varied from one to 66%. Almost all of these deaths occurred soon after farrowing time and it is possible to eliminate them largely by better care and management.

The main reasons for loss of little pigs are: lack of proper care and feeding during pregnancy and immediately following farrowing, not enough careful attention to the sow at farrowing time, and in many cases improper housing. Too much bedding in the nest often causes pig losses. Pigs get under the bedding out of sight and sow lie on them without being aware of it.

To care for a sow properly during pregnancy, she should have plenty of good green pasture in summer and winter when green forage is not available a supply of good leguminous hay should be in a rack before them at all times. This will keep her sows busy, contented and exercising. Exercise during the pregnant period is very important. In addition to pasture or hay she should have enough grain to keep her continually gaining a little in weight until about ten days before farrowing time. At this time the feed should be diminished rather than increased as many farmers believe. For the last ten days before farrowing only cooling feeds should be given such as mixture of ground oats, middlings and bran in the form of a thin slop. If these feeds do not keep the digestive tract open a light dose of epsom salts should be given. Above all no heating feeds like corn should be fed at this time.

After farrowing for at least 24 hours no feed should be given, water is sufficient. During winter, ice or cold water should have the chill removed. The sow should then be fed the same as before farrowing gradually increasing to a full feed. A good mixture during the suckling period is 400 pounds of corn meal
500 pounds of middlings, 100
The following is a summary of pounds of ground oats and 100 pounds of tankage.

When the sow is due to farrow she should be watched carefully but very quietly so as not to disturb or excite her. If she can come through without assistance all well and good, but if she is having trouble then it is up to the farmer to give her all the assistance possible, for by so doing he may save part of the litter and possibly the sow. The profit or loss on the sow for the year depends on the number of pigs she raises.

Many farmers in this county complain that they get small litters. One very noticeable reason for this is that the sows are kept too fat. A very fat sow will not breed at all or will produce a small litter. Pregnant sows should be kept in good condition but farmers should guard carefully against them becoming too fat. If they are given plenty of exercise and the above precaution followed there is not much danger of them becoming too fat.

There are several more very important things to be kept in mind if one wishes to raise the maximum number of pigs and have them grown out as well as possible before weaning. The small black teeth or tusks which all pigs have at birth should be clipped as soon as possible. These very often injure the sow's udder and little pigs in playing or tussling injure each other. These injuries often become infected and cause death or delayed growth. These teeth are extremely sharp but they can be easily removed with a pair of binoculars with no possible injury to the pig.

Guard rails should be built in the farrowing pens so that the small pigs have protection from the sow laying on them. These rails should be eight inches from the floor and eight inches wide.
They should be braced from the top rather than from the bottom by means of posts. These posts are as much of a menace as no guard rails.

To insure the small pigs having plenty to eat to make them grow well creeps should be built so that the pig may eat without having to steal from their mother's trough. A part of the pen should be closed off by a rail partition at least two feet high and through this should be an opening eight inches wide and eight inches high. By constructing in this manner the pigs are not required to crawl under a rail and bend their backs each time which may result in a permanently lowered back line.

One of the greatest foes that the hog man has to fight today is internal parasites. To protect the little pigs from these nox-iously located farrowing pen should be used without being thoroughly disinfected. Most any of the creolin preparations will serve if applied thoroughly.
Where the pens are not located thoroughly before farrowing they should be moved to ground that has not been used for some time. At least a crop or two should have been grown on it since it was last used. It should be free from mud holes or wallowing places because these are excellent breeding places for the parasites that kill or retard growth.

Too much good, kind care, treatment and management cannot be given the sow while she is pasture carrying and raising her litter.
If it is given in the right way
Common sense is the best guide.
The cost per pig is a most directly dependent on the size of
before farrowing gradually increasing to a full feed. A good mixture during the suckling period is 400 pounds of corn meal
500 pounds of middlings, 100

Annual Farm Bureau
Meeting To Be Held Here November 15th

The County Farm Bureau will hold the seventh Annual Farm Bureau Meeting in the Arby tion Room, Clearfield, Pennsylvania, on Wednesday, November 15th, starting at 10 A. M.

The formal session will be held at the Treasurer's report, County Agent's report, and election of Officers. During the afternoon session P. P. Weaver of the Extension Department, D. Munroe, Poultry Specialist and Paul Thayer, Fruit Specialist will each give talks. The program has been arranged so that it should prove interesting every one in the County.

This meeting comes but of a year, and it should be considered one of the most important meetings to ever be held in County. Too often it is not considered so, and it is hoped that year that each community will send a large delegation and be an active part in the election Officers.

A great many important problems confront the farmer which should be solved in the future. In order for the Farm Bureau to accomplish the most good it absolutely necessary to have backing of the people, both spirit and in person.

POULTRY MANAGEMENT
TIPS

November 1st is the date
by the College for beginning Poultry Management Farm Extension. This Project commences holding a series of four meetings at the farm cooperating, and in brief, what is considered a model poultry plant in that community. The cooperative act to follow the plans outlined
the Pennsylvania State College Extension Department, and keep records etc., as required.
On the other hand, the County Agent and Poultry Specialist will assist in every way possible to make this particular plant as near perfect as possible. The Farm Bureau would be pleased to have any poultry-man who desires to obtain further information on this subject either write or call at the Farm Bureau Office, within the next week or ten days.

CORRESPONDENCE COURSE
IN AGRICULTURE

The Pennsylvania State College announces that a number new Correspondence Courses Agriculture and Home Economics are now open to the farm and their families, as well any one else who might be interested. These courses are practically free and take up almost no time. In fact College credit can be obtained for these courses.

Detailed information can be obtained from the Farm Bureau Office either by letter or direct call.

FARM BUREAU OFFICE D.
DUBOIS

The Farm Bureau will hold weekly Office Day in DuBois, beginning with Friday the 16th.
The County Agent can be consulted on Friday of each week between hours of nine and four, on the third floor of the DuBois National Bank Building. A man will be present at that time who can easily be found. We will be glad to see all of the farmers in the DuBois vicinity in touch with the Farm Bureau
if they so desire.

We would be pleased to have this word passed along by who read this notice.

Curwensville's Own Column

William Sherman Weis died at his home on South Thompson street, Monday night, aged about 53 years. He had been ill for the past two years suffering from a complication of diseases. He contracted a dose of the flu about a week ago, and was not able to withstand its ravages. Deceased was born at Indiana Springs, Okla., October 31st, 1870, and was a son of John and Elizabeth Weis. He married to Annie Poole, at Richmond, Pa., about 31 years ago. The family came from Somerset to Jefferson county where they resided until 21 years ago when they removed to Curwensville. For many years the deceased followed stone quarry work and was with the Roaring Run people until that industry suspended operations. Since that time he worked at different vocations, the last being an outside foreman at Dell Sole Leather tannery. Genial in disposition, Mr. Weis had many warm and intimate friends in this town and vicinity. He was a member of no particular denomination but affiliated with the Lutheran church, in which faith he was brought up. Mr. Weis held membership in Bethesda lodge 821, I. O. O. F., being a Past Grand and also in the Order of Red Men. Surviving him are his widow, two sons, Jacob and Ernest and two daughters, Mrs. Viola Gorman and Miss Alice, all residing in or near Curwensville. No time has been set for holding the funeral at this writing and it will be announced later. The family have the united sympathy of this entire community in their hour of bereavement.

Within forty-eight hours Curwensville has had two fires. The first one was discovered Sunday evening and answering the alarm the Rescue boys found the fire to be in the McLaughlin furniture store on South Filbert street. In less than a half hour all danger of a real conflagration was past and fire extinguished. The cause of the fire was informed was from spontaneous combustion, and was near the elevator. A few hundred dollars is about the extent of damage done. Kantar's store which occupies the north room in the block suffered some damage to goods from the smoke. Monday morning early the whistle again summoned the firemen to duty. This time it was on George street and in the home of Harry Rhoads. The fire was started from an overheated hot air furnace. Chemicals were used to put out the fire and it was soon past devastation. Considerable damage was done to the side walls and bath room.

We were slightly in error in stating that the body of Calvin Price was buried at Bloomington last Friday. The facts are gathered are about as follows: Price was sent to the Warren Insane institution some years ago where he was confined for a long time. Becoming partially recovered from his affliction, but not sufficiently to be permitted to run at large, he was transferred to an institution at Fairview, Wayne county. There he died something over a week ago. A telegram was sent to a son residing in Clearfield but he failed to receive it for several days. He went to Fairview to claim the body of his father, and when he arrived was informed that it had been shipped to Philadelphia to some address not obtainable. But locating the body he returned home. It is now generally thought that the body of Calvin Price was shipped to the city and turned over to one of the many medical schools or to a hospital for scientific purposes. Therefore, the body was not interred in the Bloomington cemetery as was stated though it was no fault of the writer that he so stated.

The ladies' adult bible class of the Methodist church will hold a class social and business meeting tonight.

The Booth & Whittaker restaurant is being fixed up inside to make it more homelike for its fast increasing patronage.

The Greenwood hunters broke camp yesterday morning after a week of woods tramping after birds. The crowd met with considerable success, the bunch capturing some thirty pheasants besides a few cotton tails.

away of the breadwinner of the family and were left to the charity of a cold and cruel world. Mooseheart, which is located near Chicago, is a beautiful place of more than one thousand acres, where the children are kept together, educated and given a trade, and equipped to fight life's battles before being turned out to make their way in the world. More than two thousand children have and are enjoying the wonderful advantages of Mooseheart, which is recognized as the greatest institution of its kind anywhere, and which is largely the product of the brain and heart of James J. Davis.

In addition to Mooseheart the order also maintains Moosehaven, a home beneath sunny southern skies, where aged and indigent members of the order spend their declining years in peace and comfort as wards of the organization. Mr. Davis urged Clearfield people generally to familiarize themselves with the principles of the Loyal Order of Moose and then get behind the order and assist in its upbuilding here. He also touched briefly upon the problem of immigration, which he styled the greatest problem confronting America and the American government today. His recital of some of his personal experiences while studying the problem in Europe and at the New York port of entry confirmed his statement as to the gravity of the immigration problem.

During the luncheon the DuBois quartette sang several pretty selections which won for them deserved applause. At the conclusion of Mr. Davis' remarks adjournment was taken to the Driggs theatre, a couple of hundred members of the local Moose lodge, headed by the American Legion band, escorted the speaker to the theatre, where he again expounded the principles of Moosehood and urged its support, also briefly touching upon the affairs of the government and the problems which confront all good citizens.

Following Mr. Davis' remarks at the theatre, the assemblage again accompanied him to the new Moose Temple on Market street, between Third and Fourth streets, where the cornerstone was laid with appropriate and impressive exercises. Secretary Davis again addressing the assemblage and reiterating his championship of the Loyal Order of Moose. That Jimmy Davis is a "whale of a man" and a "horse for work" was the universal verdict of all who met the energetic Secretary of Labor during his strenuous day in Clearfield. His remarks concerning the need for more unions in our schools and the duty of good citizens made a distinct hit with Clearfield people and showed the Secretary of Labor to be a real 100 per cent American, with strong convictions as to what is needed in our country today and the courage of those convictions at all times. He is indeed a worthy citizen and with such men high in the councils of those entrusted with the handling of our government, the average citizen feels assured that the government of the greatest country under the sun is in mighty capable hands, especially so far as the Department of Labor is concerned.

Adam's Apple.

Adam's apple is the prominence made by the thyroid cartilage on the front of the human throat. It is natural on both men and women, but is larger in men. Adam's apple, or pomum Adami, got its name from the notion that when Adam tried to swallow the forbidden fruit it stuck in his throat. The Adam's apple is an aid to the organ of speech.

Guaranteed to relieve eczema, tetter, salt rheum, itching, bleeding or protruding piles, burns, cuts, bruises, old sores, pinholes, boils, carbuncles, chapped hands, chilblains, festers, insect bites and poison from ivy. "My face and neck were one mass of sores; doctors said I had eczema and erysipelas. I had not slept for weeks with burning, itching pain. The first time I used San Cura Ointment I slept all night and in a short time was completely cured." - Chas. Fay, Townville, Pa. "My wife stepped on a rusty nail and ran it into her foot. San Cura Ointment drew out a poisonous brown pus and cured her promptly." - Eugene McKelvie, Plum, Pa. "I had been afflicted over thirty years with piles and spent over $500 for pile medicine. Two jars of San Cura Ointment cured me." - James Lynch, Enterprise, Pa. San Cura Ointment costs 30, 60 and $1.25 a jar at Woodward & McPherson's and is a splendid remedy for burns, scalds, cuts and bruises.

Last Sunday was a good day at St. John's. The Holy Communion was administered at both morning and evening services. It was one of the largest fall communions during the present pastorate. Five were received into church fellowship by letter. Three children were baptized. At the evening hour the pastor spoke on the theme, "Nearness To God," stressing the importance of this sacrament in the life of the individual who would draw near to God and showed the relationship that exists when that relationship is established and kept. On Wednesday evening at the "Quiet Hour" service Rev. S. Naham, a Lutheran pastor from Nuremberg, Mesopotamia, will speak. All are invited to hear him. Next Sunday we will observe our second annual Laura E. Gilliland Day. A special message and a special program. The offering for the day will go toward the building of the Laura E. Gilliland nursery building in Africa.

MRS. HINGKLEY NERVOUS WRECK

Tells Women How She Was Restored to Perfect Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Memphis, Tenn. - "Two years ago I was completely run-down and my nerves were a wreck. I could not sleep a room without resting. I could not do my work except a little at a time, and the doctor's medicine did not help me. One day I came one threw your little book on to my porch, and in it I read several testimonials of women who had been like myself. I went right out and I got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and before I had taken the whole of that bottle I knew it was helping me. I took six bottles, and then in about three weeks I took two more. Now I am in perfect health. I do all of my own work and could do more. I can truly say that I know I owe my health to Mrs. J. H. Hinkley, 510 Union Ave., Memphis, Tenn. Lydia E. 200 MOTORISTS ARE DISCIPLINED BY THE STATE HIGHWAY DEPT.

Harrisburg, Nov. 5. (U. P.)—The State Highway Department has disciplined during the past month 200 motorists either by revocation of licenses or blacklisting, it was announced today.

There were 112 motorists whose licenses were revoked for various causes. Of this number 78 had been convicted for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

THIS COUNTY IS VERY LOW IN PRODUCTION OF LUSCIOUS APPLE

Harrisburg, Nov. 5.—Every county in Pennsylvania contributed to the record yield of apples in Pennsylvania this year, according to figures of the State Department of Agriculture today.

The 67 counties of the state produced a total of 11,542,525 bushels the greatest number coming from Adams county, and the lowest from Cameron, where 2,854 bushels of apples comprised the yield for this year. The apple yield for some of the counties follows, in bushels: Adams, 1,023,861; Armstrong, 176,679; Beaver, 100,000; Bedford, 515,678; Berks, 238,736; Blair, 189,054; Bradford, 181,020; Bucks, 184,572; Butler, 215,708; Cambria, 95,203; Cameron, 2,854; Carbon, 68,077; Center, 204,078; Clarion, 37,849; Clearfield, 77,915; Clinton, 106,111; Huntingdon, 154,961; Indiana, 169,214; Jefferson, 38,919.

ANTI-JEWISH RIOTS CONTINUE THRU-OUT THE NIGHT IN BERLIN

Berlin, Nov. 6.—Anti-Jewish riots, which at times threatened to develop into an actual pogrom, raged in Berlin throughout the night and continued today in many parts of the city.

At noon a police report said there had been 100 individual cases of plundering during the night and that such outrages were still going on. Hundreds of Jews, many of them with bloody wounds and torn garments, fled in panic from Berlin this morning.

Which. Dickie, the six-year-old, in a certain Washington family, had become somewhat perplexed through hearing discussions of current events and of school topics. "Dad," he asked one evening, "which is longer, the all-sunary canal or the Panama canal?"

Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—Her many friends residing in the Clearfield county sections nearby were shocked on learning that Miss Frances Kane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Kane, Sr., of Munson, had passed away at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon following neuralgia in her teeth which went to the brain. She had been ill only a few days, and 36 hours prior to her demise was unconscious. The family had the services of three doctors and two nurses that her life might be saved, but all in vain. She was 12 years of age, and a few years ago attended the public schools in that place. She was the first of a family of eleven children, to answer the final call. She was known for miles around and held in highest regard. Her death has cast a gloom over the entire community. Funeral services will be held at St. Agnes Catholic church, Morrisdale, at 9 o'clock Thursday morning.

Shur-on SPECTACLES & EYEGLASSES

All the latest and latest styles in party dress eyeglasses—Shur-on Spectacles—mounts with white gold.

With afternoon glasses or street glasses—these Shur-on Spectacles are carried as a matter of course.

Your spectacles and eyeglasses, too, should agree with costume and occasion

Of course the cut and hue of dress are important factors in appearance. But don't forget glasses! If they clash with costume and occasion, the most attractive of faces is handicapped and the clearest gown avails you little.

But it is quite easy to make sure that your glasses agree with you, your costume and the occasion. Let us fit you with the proper spectacles and eye-glasses for dress, for sport and semi-dress. Besides style correctness, you will thus gain greatly beyond question and doubt in scientific precision.

Silks That Lure and Inspire at Very Moderate Prices

The new Fall Silks are artistic creations. Not only lustrous shiny satins are very much in vogue, but rich brocades and many metallized fabrics for evening wear. All gay and colorful, they promise dazzling sights at the social festivities of the winter season.

The Bag Pipes of Scotland Tune Up Plaids for This Fall

More fascinating than ever they are assured a hearty welcome by discerning women. The two toned combinations are the favorites—blue and grey, or copper blending in with shades of red, are combined exquisitely. Not startling colors but soft and discreet. It will not take the clever feminine eye long to visualize the swaggy top coats or the good looking sport's skirts that these materials suggest.

Prices are the lowest possible.
